A delicious comedy of youth, high spirits, captivating people and charming sentiment. It is a story of life in France at the time of the first Napoleon. Fifi, a glad, mad little actress of eighteen, is the star performer in a third-rate Parisian theater. Beautiful and ambitious, talented and mischievous, she ventures on some remarkable performances, in which the Emperor, the Pope, a lottery ticket, a monkey and a blue satin bed are all somehow involved. "It is a porcelain jar filled with rose leaves; a gem polished and engraved with deep-skilled art; a bit of writing for which the world is not only richer but happier."—Chicago Evening Post.

The Loves of the Lady Arabella.

With twelve pictures in color by Clarence F. Underwood. Ornamental cover with inlay picture by Underwood. 12mo, cloth, in a box.....$1.50

Lady Arabella Stormont was a great heiress in the days of George III, and as beautiful as rich, and as capricious as either. Many men loved her and one she loved. The strange thing that she did for that one makes the climax of this most sprightly romance. The whole tale is bright with wit and the flashing of blades, and as full of alluring variety as Arabella's own lovely countenance. Mr. Underwood has made the appearance of the volume inside and out befittingly beautiful.

Pipetown Sandy.

With many illustrations by C. L. Hinton. 12mo, cloth $1.50

The march king who marched his way into popular fiction with his delightful romance. "The Fifth String," again shows that his skill with the pen is equal to his skill with the baton. "Pipetown Sandy" is a tale of Mr. Sousa's own city of Washington in the sixties,—a tale combining adventure, humor, the tenderness of boyhood and the interest of a novel plot. Sandy himself is unlike anybody you have ever met before, but for all that he is the realest of the real.

STRANG. In Clive's Command.

A Story of the Fight for India, by Herbert Strang. With many spirited illustrations by W. Rainey, R. I. Large 12mo, cloth.....$1.50

Mr. Strang is everywhere regarded as having succeeded to the late G. A. Henty's position of the writer of books dearest to the heart of a boy. He has in fact accomplished more than Mr. Henty, for, while his vigorous tales are based on historical fact, the historical fact is never allowed to encumber the narrative. With Mr. Strang the story's the thing. In this book he tells the daring and ingenious exploits of Desmond Burke, a sixteen-year-old boy who follows Clive to victory in India and is enabled to do him extraordinary service. Breathlessly exciting from cover to cover is In Clive's Command.

Fighting on the Congo.

The Story of an American Boy Among the Rubber Slaves. Fully illustrated by W. Rainey, R. I. Large 12mo, cloth.....$1.50

An American boy of British parentage finds himself stranded in the remotest wilds of the Congo Free State. There he comes into contact with the Belgian authorities, who, in their relentless hunt for rubber, are oppressing the natives with savage tyranny. How the hero champions the victims and finally discomfits the officials against whom he is pitted is told with vividness and power. The author's capacity of describing this interesting region of the world is admitted to be unsurpassed. The serious purpose of the story is lightened by many pleasant touches of humor.

Jack Hardy.

A Story of English Smugglers in the Days of Napoleon. Illustrated by W. Rainey, R. I. Large 12mo, cloth.....$1.50

An English boy in the navy in the early part of the 19th Century had ample opportunity to show what stuff he was made of, and Jack Hardy answers to the emergency every time. Just when his disappointment at not being allowed to join Nelson in fighting "Boney" was keenest, he gets upon the track of a gang of smugglers, ferrets out their code, and is captured by the French, only to be the means of exposing, in the end, the operations of a spy. It is full of life and manliness, with the genuine salt of humor and human nature.

On the Trail of the Arabs.

A Story of Heroic Deeds in Africa. Illustrated by Charles M. Sheldon. Large 12mo, cloth.....$1.50

After a battle between the Arabs and the black men, in which the natives, under Tom's leadership, are victorious, Tom is chosen chief in place of their dead king, and administers the affairs of State with true British nerve and success. The story rouses sympathy for the natives, exposes the greed and cruelty of the Arabs and portrays the intelligence and courage of a fine youth.

To accuracy of observation and completeness of detail the author adds a charming enthusiasm and a sincerity of literary and artistic workmanship.

TERHUNE. See Marion Harland.

THANET. The Man of the Hour.

By Octave Thanet (Alice French). Illustrated by Lucius W. Hitchcock. 12mo, cloth $1.50

This, the first long novel by a famous writer of short stories, combines more American qualities than any book of many years. It is saturated with Americanism. It has American humor, American optimism, American vigor, and above all the American ideal of love and labor. It is a concentration of American problems, especially as they are found in the Middle West. But it is no "problem novel". It is story, first, last, and all the time—a tale that's worth the telling for its own sake and that tells itself straight through.

The Lion's Share.

Illustrated by E. M. Ashe. 12mo, cloth $1.50

A story of bewilderment in the open—a mystery pursued to its unraveling in the open air; a chase in full view and full cry—this is the unusual handling of the latest story by Octave Thanet. Across the continent and up and down the avenues of San Francisco goes the unflagging hunt. Its spirit of gayety and its freedom from conventionality make The Lion's Share irresistible. From beginning to end it is charged with absorbing interest, excitement, optimism, vigor and humor. Its movement is marvelous. Like a perfect motor, it catches its spark with a jump at the start and rushes along without a moment's faltering.

By Inheritance.

Illustrated by Thomas Fogarty. 12mo, cloth $1.50

Octave Thanet's great constructive imagination engages an important question in By Inheritance—the problem of the South, our most serious problem as a united people. Octave Thanet rises to the opportunity. Her book approves itself as adequate to the great occasion. It is ripe, many-sided, illuminative. It abounds in a rich and thoroughly American humor. Its story-interest is cumulative. The characters live by her true perceptions and creative genius. The incidents of the plot have picturesqueness, stirring reality and intensity. By Inheritance is a big book, worthy of the author, worthy of America.

VALENTINE. The Ship of Silence, and Other Poems.

By Edward Uffington Valentine. 12mo, cloth.....Postage 14c, net, $1.20

"This is Mr. Valentine's first book. It makes its appearance with the distinction of unobtrusiveness. There is a certain triumph for literature in the fact that a man should find, as the chief concern of his art, the beauty of the world in which we must all live, and the beauty of the human spirit which we should all share. To succeed on these heights is success indeed."—James Lane Allen, in The Outlook.

Hecla Sandwith.

12mo, cloth.....$1.50

An old-fashioned love story of the kind we all love, and something more than a love story, an excellent study of character and a thoroughly charming and faithful picture of life in the fifties in a Pennsylvania town. It was to be expected that Mr. Valentine's novel should prove a work of art, finished in detail and beautiful in color; but "Hecla Sandwith" adds to the graceful touch of the poet the strength of the realist and the imagination of the romancer.

VANCE. The Brass Bowl.

By Louis Joseph Vance. Illustrated by Orson Lowell. Inlay cover picture by A. I. Keller. 12mo, cloth.....$1.50

A story of incident and mystery in New York, exciting, compelling, desperately interesting. Mr. Vance has a splendid faculty of invention and this novel strikes far from the beaten track of fiction.

The Black Bag.

Illustrated by Thomas Fogarty. 12mo, cloth.....$1.50

The spirit of madcap romance which won for Mr. Vance's previous novel, The Brass Bowl, great popularity and wide praise, is the strong attraction that The Black Bag offers. The surer touch of greater experience is here, too; and with it a freshness, joy and sparkle that are altogether charming. The Philadelphia Record says: "In The Brass Bowl, Mr. Vance gave out a lively tale of mystery, but it is a summer calm compared with The Black Bag, which is a veritable whirlwind."

VAN VORST. The Girl from His Town.

By Marie Van Vorst, author of In Ambush. Illustrated by F. Graham Cootes. 12mo, cloth.....$1.50

This story is a reversal of the usual type. Instead of a rich American heiress going abroad and being sought after by impecunious noblemen, Miss Van Vorst has sent a rich young American whose self-made father has just departed leaving many millions behind him. It is a clever and dashing story that leaves the reader happy and satisfied. It adds to Miss Van Vorst's already brilliant reputation and wins for her thousands on thousands of new readers.

VAN VORST.—Continued.—First Love.

Illustrated by F. Graham Cootes. 12mo, cloth $1.50

Miss Van Vorst has dared to deal with a theme familiar enough in real life, but unconventional enough in fiction: a young fellow's worship of a woman some years older than himself, but still youthful and very lovely. "Deep as first love and wild with all regret," says Tennyson. But this picture of First Love is not painted in sombre colors. It has its touch of pathos, but more of social comedy. In it sentiment is relieved and heightened by action—good, downright, melodramatic action.

VAWTER. The Rabbit's Ransom, and Other Stories.

By Clara Vawter. Illustrated and decorated by Will Vawter. 12mo, cloth $1.25

This is a book of fascinating stories and verses, not only of children, but for children—a rare achievement. The stories are characterized by just the fanciful qualities which make children come back to them again and again, and the verses are jolly bits of humor. Miss Vawter's brother, the artist, who shares all her intimate knowledge of childhood, has made a series of pictures that deliciously supplement those from her pen.

Hoosier Children.

By Will Vawter. A series of four pictures, in mezzotint, size 11x14. Each 25 cents. The four $1.00

WALCOTT. Blindfolded.

By Earle Ashley Walcott. With eight illustrations by Alice Barber Stephens. 12mo, cloth, ornamental cover $1.50

Blindfolded is a romantic story, chock full of adventurous mystery. Who? Which? What? How? When? Why? Where? Whence? Whither?—These are the questions Giles Dudley asked when he landed in San Francisco and was forced at once to act a part without knowing the part he was acting. These are the questions the reader asks while, as ignorant as Giles himself, he gropes blindly down the pathway of the plot. The action starts quickly and is kept on the dead run. Day and night there is something doing.

The Apple of Discord.

Illustrated by Alice Barber Stephens. Inlay cover picture in colors. 12mo, cloth .. $1.50

The Apple of Discord preserves and repeats that extraordinary combination of romance, mystery and adventure which makes Blindfolded a continuous current of excitement. Like Blindfolded, this is a tale of picturesque old San Francisco. The plots of highbinders, the agitation of a secret band of labor leaders and the fury of a financial panic are woven into one stretch of thrilling narrative.

By Mrs. Lew Wallace. With twelve full-page half-tone engravings, tinted. 12mo, cloth ..... Postage 12c, net, $1.00

Delightfully drawn pictures of life in the old and new Jerusalem; in ancient and modern Palestine.

WASON. The Steering Wheel.

By Robert Alexander Wason, author of Happy Hawkins. Illustrated by Paul Meylan. 12mo, cloth $1.50

Dick Bannington, just arrived at his uncle's New Jersey home from a year's travel abroad, hearing the call of the blood to take up his place in the Bannington steel mills on the one hand and the call of universal brotherhood on the other, is most engagingly young, quixotic, inconsistent, loyal, hot-headed, clever. He starts the ball a-rolling and it gathers fun and speed with every revolution. In The Steering Wheel Mr. Wason contributes richly to "the public stock of harmless pleasure." Alike as humorist and story teller he shines, and readers will be grateful.

WELLS. Folly for the Wise.

By Carolyn Wells. Illustrated by Gustave Verbeek, Fanny Y. Cory, Florence Scovel Shinn and Oliver Herford. 12mo, cloth.....Postage 12c, net, $1.00

In this volume has been brought together Miss Wells' wittiest work, and she is by all odds the wittiest writer of her generation. Here we find her inimitable verses on "Compound Zoology"; here, too, she tells the wild animals how to behave and shows us how to know them; gives the people who are always arguing by proverbs a home-thrust in her funny little essays called "Mixed Morals"; and sets the final form to which the good limerick must hereafter attain. It is the most exhilarating book of nonsense ever published.

WHEELOCK. Stories of Wagner Operas for Children.

By Elizabeth M. Wheelock. Illustrated. New Edition. Tall 12mo, cloth.....$1.25

The great success of the first edition has led to the preparation of a new one, in which Tannhauser, Parsifal and Tristan and Isolde are added to the collection. The author is a teacher in the Horace Mann Schools, and her book has come to be accepted as the most delightful introduction to Wagner and Teutonic legend.

WHITLOCK. The Thirteenth District.

By Brand Whitlock. 12mo, cloth.....$1.50

A realistic western story of love and politics, and a searching study of their influence on character. The author shows, with extraordinary vitality of treatment, the tricks, the heat, the passion, the tumult of the political arena, the weariness and stubbornness of a deadlock, the triumph and strength of love. In speaking of the "The Thirteenth District," Ex-President Cleveland once said: "That book interested me greatly because it deals with matters which persons acquainted with politics know about." Mr. William Dean Howells calls it "the best American political novel that has ever been done."

Her Infinite Variety.

With twelve full-page illustrations in photogravure by Howard Chandler Christy. Decorated by Ralph Fletcher Seymour. 12mo, cloth, in a box.....$1.50

With this novel of love and laughter, Mr. Whitlock has opened a new vein in the mine of humor. The story centers around an effort to pass a bill for woman's suffrage in the Legislature of Illinois. A new theme, good dialogue and happy repartee make the story distinctive, the clearly-drawn characters at once become our friends, and the world-old truth is emphasized anew that the greatest charm of woman is Her Infinite Variety.

"Its whole atmosphere is quite as fascinating as anything we recall in modern light literature."—Philadelphia Record.

The Happy Average.

12mo, cloth.....$1.50

A thoroughly American story of a young man who found himself. Mr. Whitlock here draws interesting characters with the artistic sympathy and fineness for which he is noted. He tells how a young college graduate fell in love with a winsome girl, became engaged to her, went out into the world to fight for a place for himself, which he could ask her to share with him—and won. It is instinct with the essence of ambition.

The Turn of the Balance.

Illustrated by Jay Hambidge. 12mo, cloth.....$1.50

A book of the scope and breadth of Dickens, full of many characters, and revealing everywhere the author's wonderful insight into the springs of human action. Taken as a whole, it constitutes a tremendous arraignment of the law as it is administered in America to-day. But it impresses one first and most of all as a great drama made out of the stuff of actual life.

The Gold Brick.

12mo, cloth.....$1.50

These political stories by Toledo's mayor represent the best of the Brand. Each is a capital tale by a man who knows all the ins and outs of the great game. Sometimes love is mixed with the politics but with or without it the reader finds himself absorbed. Marked by happy idealism, they declare anew that honesty is the best policy. They are sincere in sentiment, fearless in treatment, rich in humor, tender in pathos, in their human appeal irresistible.

WINTER. The Prize to the Hardy.

By Alice Winter. With drawings by R. M. Crosby. 12mo, cloth.....$1.50

"The Prize to the Hardy" has the buoyancy, the cheerfulness and the vigor of the new empire where its scene is laid—the great wheat country of the Northwest. The climax is a forest fire, described with a fervor and strength that make it one of the great pictures of modern fiction. If to be swift without obscurity, dramatic without melodrama, and witty without "smartness" render a story excellent, then "The Prize to the Hardy" is one of the best.

Jewel-Weed.

Illustrated by Harrison Fisher. With inlay cover picture by Fisher. 12mo, cloth.....$1.50

What will happen when the buoyant, high-spirited and keen-witted young man of family awakes and realizes that he is tied for life to a mere piece of beautiful flesh? That is the question Mrs. Winter answers in her second story of the Great Northwest. She answers it, of course, in her own original way, so clever, so cheerful, so vital and so distinguished.

WOOD. Modern Business Corporations.

By William Allen Wood, M. S., LL. B. With forms for the organization and management of corporations, by Louis B. Ewbank, LL. B. 8vo, cloth, 380 pages,
.....Postage 20c, net, $2.50

This book contains a complete discussion of the financial side of corporations, the capitalization, promotion, sale of stocks and bonds, corporate credit and accounting, besides a summary of the decisions of the courts on the law of corporations and an analysis of the laws of the liberal states. The management of corporations is taken up in detail, so that the lawyer, officer, director or stockholder of corporations or the student of commercial subjects may get a clear, definite and comprehensive idea of corporate affairs.

WOODROW. The Silver Butterfly.

By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow. Illustrated in color by Howard Chandler Christy. 12mo, cloth.....$1.50

The story of a South American mine, rich beyond dreams, and of a New York maiden, beyond dreams beautiful—both known as the Silver Buterfly. "Well named is THE SILVER BUTTERFLY! There could not be a better symbol of the darting swiftness, the eager love plot, the elusive mystery and the flashing wit."—Nashville American.

The Beauty.

Illustrated by Will Grefé. 12mo, cloth.....$1.50

How a beautiful woman rebels, how she gets her freedom and her right to prove that she has something more than beauty, how her husband learns her great worth and she his lovableness, only Mrs. Woodrow must tell. She does it with great brilliancy, sparkle and vivacity. This story of New York is full of humor, charm and color and moves with rapidity and unerring certainty to a striking and happy climax. The Beauty is a House of Mirth, lacking the ugly shadow of tragedy, and having a humor and a wit unknown to Mrs. Wharton's success.

WYLIE. The Native Born.

By I. A. R. Wylie. Illustrated by John Newton Howitt. 12mo, cloth.....$1.50

This is a tale of the English in India to-day—an India later than that with which Kipling and Mrs. Steele have dealt, but still darkly romantic, the scene of pomp and fabulous wealth, of sudden perils and volcanic uprisings, of the world-old mystical East in conflict with the new progressive West. To enumerate the events of the plot, so dramatic, so romantic, so thrilling, would give the impression of a sensational book. But the author's best work is given to the play of character on character, of race on race.

Poetry, were it the rudest, so it be sincere, is the attempt which man makes to render his existence harmonious, the utmost he can do for that end; it springs therefore from his whole feelings, opinions, activity, and takes its character from these. It may be called the music of the whole inner being.—Carlyle.

The BOY CHUMS SERIES

By Wilmer M. Ely

In this series of remarkable stories by Wilmer M. Ely are described the adventures of two boy chums—Charlie West and Walter Hazard—in the great swamps of interior Florida and among the cays off the Florida Coast, and through the Bahama Islands. Judging from the books already published, those to come will furnish enough adventure and excitement to hold the attention of the reader from cover to cover. These are real, live boys, and their experiences are well worth following. If you read one book you will surely be anxious for those that are to follow.

CALDWELL'S BOYS' & GIRLS' AT HOME

THIRD ISSUE

With over 150 ILLUSTRATIONS
many of which are in COLOR

Caldwell's Boys' and Girls' at Home is now an established favorite among American boys and girls. And this is not surprising, for the aim of the publishers is to get the best, regardless of cost. In announcing this third issue they are confident that their readers will find this new volume as good as ever—and better! Excellent fare has again been provided by the favorite children's artists and authors, and the work of one or two new people appears for the first time. Among writers are Miss Theodora Wilson Wilson, Evelyn Sharp, Alice Talwin Morris, Helen Broadbent, Florence Dugdale, and Jessie Pope. The principal artists are Cecil Alden, John Hassall, Florence Harrison, Kate Fricero, Alan Wright, Helen Stratton, and Gordon Browne.

Caldwell's Boys' and Girls' at Home is a very treasure-house for the little ones, and there is not a dull page in it. As usual, there are numerous colored illustrations, so numerous, in fact, that they comprise nearly a third of the whole. By common consent this is the best gift-book on the market.

Picture boards, size $8\frac{1}{2}'' \times 11''$, price 1.25
Cloth, gilt top, price 1.75

Evelyn Sharp—Charles Robinson

THE CHILD'S CHRISTMAS.

Pictures by Charles Robinson, Text by Evelyn Sharp. Large 4to, cloth elegant, gilt edges, price 2.00.

In nearly two hundred charming illustrations in color and black-and-white the artist tells pictorially what the author describes in words—the events of Christmas Eve; the visit of Santa Claus; the joys of Christmas Day; the Christmas party; the Christmas pantomime; the outdoor sports; all, in fact, that makes Christmas a time of pure delight to the young, and to grown-ups a season of kindness and good-will. In the sumptuousness of its get-up, the richness of binding, the quality of paper, the technical excellence of printing, and the care that has been lavished on the reproduction of the color and line illustrations, The Child's Christmas is a triumph of modern book production.

"We doubt whether anybody will ever do anything better or finer in this type of gift book."
—The Standard.

"As bright and Christmasy a volume as heart could wish."—Pall Mall Gazette.

Evelyn Sharp—Charles Robinson

THE STORY OF THE WEATHERCOCK.

Stories for Children by Evelyn Sharp. With 16 colored plates, and the text fully illustrated with black-and-white drawings by Charles Robinson. Large 4to, cloth elegant, full gilt and gilt edges, price 2.00.

In this beautiful volume Miss Evelyn Sharp relates in her inimitable style, with many pretty touches of fancy, the story of the Weathercock and of the interesting doings and fortunes of children whom he has watched from his exalted position, particularly one lively baby who can understand the wonderful things the Weathercock has to tell. Children will be charmed by the tale, and by the beautiful drawings (nearly 200 in all, many of them colored) with which Mr. Charles Robinson, one of the most popular of living artists, has illustrated it.

"This is certainly the best Christmas book for children we have seen this year, and the sheer beauty of its illustrations will make it a pleasure to handle to many who are no longer children."
—Public Opinion.

Reduced from Great-grandmother's Book

Ruth A. Hobson

GREAT-GRANDMOTHER'S BOOK: "The Daisy", An oldfashioned Picture-book for Children.

Illustrated with 16 full pages in color and numerous black-and-white drawings and vignettes. Handsome cover, with colored illustration inset, cloth back, 1.25.

These cautionary verses of the early nineteenth century always preserve the freshness of their simple charm. Miss Ruth Hobson's clever drawings should deserve much attention, as she has most faithfully depicted early Victorian costume and environment—in fact, the atmosphere is so exact, that from these pages the children of to-day will be able to realize how their great-grandparents dressed, and talked, and played.

FROM A DRAWING BY FLORENCE HARRISON

ONE OF THE ILLUSTRATIONS
FROM IN THE FAIRY RING
BY FLORENCE HARRISON

Florence Harrison

IN THE FAIRY RING: A Book of Verses and Pictures for Children.

With 24 beautiful colored plates, and black-and-white drawings on every page. Bound in cloth with an exquisite design in gold, and special end-papers. Large quarto, gilt edges, price 2.00.

Never before has such a delightful book as this been prepared for children. Poet Laureate of the Nursery is not too lofty a title to confer on the author of the verses it contains, and it is hardly possible to speak too highly of the charming illustrations. The verses are superior to some of the so-called children's classics in that while they are children's verses for children, not for grown-ups, they have at the same time a poetic quality that will be appreciated by all people with literary taste. The publishers have done everything in their power to make the material equipment of the book worthy of the contents. The text and line drawings are printed in a beautiful shade of grey on a high-quality supercalendered paper which has been specially made for the purpose, and the plates have been carefully reproduced by the latest and most improved process, so that the artist's exquisite coloring has been preserved. The sumptuous cloth cover is a triumph of modern bookbinding.

THE RHYME OF A RUN, and other Verse for Children, Written and Pictured by Florence Harrison.

With 24 drawings in full color, beautifully reproduced and mounted on grey art paper, and many in outline. Sumptuously bound in cloth, price 2.00.

In every respect this book is unique. Miss Harrison is both a poet and an artist of a high order. Her verses are rhymes for children with the true ring of the classic nursery rhymes, but at the same time they are poems which will appeal to grown-ups by reason of their quaint fancy and their melodious phrasing. Her drawings are original both in conception and style, and will delight not only children but all lovers of art. The colored plates have been reproduced by the latest and most improved process, so that the artist's rich and beautiful coloring—a special feature of her work—has been preserved; and they are mounted on grey art paper. The text and the line drawings are beautifully printed on the same paper, and the book is sumptuously bound in cloth covers, with colored cover design. Altogether it is a strikingly original and highly artistic gift-book.

THREE JOVIAL PUPPIES: A Book of Pictures and Rhymes.

With 32 colored pictures, end-papers, and cover design by J. A. Shepherd, and rhymes by E. D. Cuming. Picture boards, cloth back, bound in Japanese fashion, 15½ inches by 11 inches, price 2.00.

The creator of the famous Zig-Zags at the Zoo has found in this book a subject after his own heart, and the humors of puppy life never had a more brilliant interpreter. The book tells, after the fashion of Caldecott's Three Jovial Huntsmen, the wonderful adventures which three bright representatives of puppydom manage to crowd into one glorious day. It is safe to prophesy that this original picture-book will be the gift-book of the season.

"A gift-book worthy of praise both as regards pictures and rhymes."—Athenæum.

"Boisterous laughter will, one feels sure, greet the appearance of this volume in the nursery."
—Scotsman.

Agnes Grozier Herbertson

HEROIC LEGENDS.

Re-told by Agnes Grozier Herbertson. Illustrated with 16 beautifully colored plates by Helen Stratton. Square 8vo, cloth elegant, full gilt and gilt top, price 1.50.

This handsome volume contains a capital collection of grand old legends, such as the tales of St. George and the Dragon, Valentine and Orson, Charlemagne and the Charcoal Burner, Richard and Blondel, &c., which all children should know as they know Jack the Giant-killer and Red Riding Hood. These tales have never before been presented in such an attractive form. Miss Herbertson, who is an established favorite in the nursery, tells the old legends in a way that will charm young people, and Miss Helen Stratton's beautiful illustrations are instinct with the spirit of old romance. The text is printed in a large clear type on paper of excellent quality, and the volume is sumptuously bound in cloth, with gilt design and gilt edges.

"Than this a more perfect gift-book for either boy or girl will not easily be found."
—Birmingham Post.

KING TIME

OR, THE MYSTICAL LAND OF THE HOURS

BY PERCY KEESE FITZHUGH
ILLUSTRATED BY L. J. BRIDGMAN

The Most Original Book for Children Published in a Decade

" King Time, or, The Mystical Land of the Hours," is the story of a little boy who sits in front of the tall hall clock, and as he hears the clock strike wonders where the hours go when they pass away. While so wondering he falls asleep, and dreams that he is visiting the mystical kingdom of Father Time. He meets King Time, and also innumerable imps who represent the various hours of history. He meets the old Duke of " Procrastination," who is waging war against King Time, and becomes involved in the military preparations, etc. Finally the little boy becomes tired of waiting for the duke, and in the midst of his duties as King Time's official spy wakes up to find the governess, who has just entered, staring at him in surprise.

The different imps, each representing some momentous event in the world's history, all tell their stories of what they saw when sojourning in the world, to the great amusement and often astonishment of the little boy. The little imps representing the hours, minutes, jiffies, etc., are grotesquely significant of the general theme of " Time," bearing resemblance to clock work, clock faces, etc. The houses in which the imps live are in the shape of clocks — alarm clocks, Swiss clocks, Cuckoo clocks, etc. Printed on fine finished paper, with over 100 text and eight full-page colored half-tone illustrations. Bound in cloth, with original cover design. Size, 7 1-4 x 8 3-4. Price, $1.25

NEW POPULAR ILLUSTRATED EDITION

ANIMAL AUTOBIOGRAPHICAL SERIES

The volumes in this series will each inculcate kindness toward dumb animals in the mind of the child by showing that our pets have feelings as well as ourselves. Each animal tells his own story entirely, and as far as possible the incidents are taken from life. Unlike so many of the animal stories of the day, however, they are not people simply dressed in animal attire, but each story, being a careful study of the pet's life and manners by the author, carries out as far as possible the thoughts the animal itself would have if he were able to tell his own story.

Each volume is printed on extra fine laid paper, with frontispiece in color, and fully illustrated in half-tone by the best artists, excepting where possible photographs taken from life are used. 12mo. Bound in cloth, with an appropriate inlay for the subject.

Price, each, $1.00

1 BLACK BEAUTY, The Autobiography of a HORSE

By ANNA SEWELL. Fully Illustrated by H. Toaspern, Jr.

A new edition of this delightful and famous classic, fully illustrated. Its invaluable influence of imparting humanity and kindness in the treatment of all animals is proverbial and it should be read by all young people.

2 PUP, The Autobiography of a GREYHOUND

By OLLIE HURD BRAGDON. Illustrations from photographs.

Mrs. Bragdon has here given us a true and most readable story of her greyhound. The volume abounds in interest throughout, and it is safe to say the book will not be laid aside until "Pup" at the end finds his brother and mother, from whom he was stolen while a small puppy, and proves his worth to the blue ribbons he receives in the shows.

3 YOPPY, The Autobiography of a MONKEY

By MOLLIE LEE CLIFFORD. Illustrated by L. J. Bridgman.

The organ-grinder's monkey is familiar to all children, but they only see his life from what seems the bright side, but in this entertaining book it will be found his life is not so bright as his little red coat. At last, however, he reaches his comfortable home again, where he is forever up to mischievous tricks.

4 NEDDY, The Autobiography of a DONKEY

By GERTRUDE SELLON. Edited by Charles Welsh. Illustrated by L. J. Bridgman.

An interesting account of a donkey, the pet of the family, and especially of his young mistress. He is stolen, and his return to his home shows more sagacity than a donkey is usually credited with. It is a true story, and vouched for on good authority.

5 POLLY, The Autobiography of a PARROT

By MOLLIE LEE CLIFFORD. Illustrated by L. J. Bridgman.

An entertaining story of the life of a parrot, from his birth in South America, to the time he reaches a home where loving care is always given him. A mischievous bird, but possessing much common sense, and as to his vocabulary, — well, read the book, — it is a true story, too.

TALES THAT NEVER DIE

By MARIA EDGEWORTH

Edited by CHARLES WELSH. With an Introduction by Professor CHARLES ELIOT NORTON, LL.D., etc.

Walter Taylor Field says: — "The grand old-fashioned stories are charming. They are real classics and no child should miss the opportunity of becoming thoroughly acquainted with them." The volume is edited by Charles Welsh, the well-known critic and authority on juvenile literature, and the interest in the work is further enhanced by the introduction of Prof. Charles Eliot Norton. Printed on fine finished paper and illustrated. Bound in full cloth. Cover design in gold and inks. 12mo. Price, $1.25

BOOKS FOR BOYS

It is of peculiar interest to know that Captain F. S. Brereton, a soldier and the son of a soldier, who, as a writer of stories of military history, carries on the tradition of Henty, is a close kinsman of that king of boys' writers. Like Henty he has been much to the wars. He knows what it means to be under fire, to undergo hunger and cold and physical exhaustion in long solitary treks across the veldt, to fall into the hands of the enemy, to succor the wounded after battle. Captain Brereton knows intimately the actualities of war, just as Henty did. He has been far and seen much, from Burma to the veldt and the deserts of Egypt, and is well able to tell the stories of great campaigns, illuminated by the light of his own personal experiences.

CAPTAIN F. S. BRERETON

CAPTAIN F. S. BRERETON

PRESS OPINIONS

"Captain F. S. Brereton, upon whom the mantle of Henty seems to have fallen and clothed him with a power greater than his. In his graphic, vivid and powerful manner he relates the events that led up to the conquest of Canada, and to the supremacy of the Anglo-Saxon race in the new world." — Herald, Los Angeles.

"Boys will read Captain Brereton's books for the author's sake, as well as for the stories themselves, for the gallant young officer is a seasoned campaigner, and both in India and Africa has undergone all the experiences which make so exciting and hazardous a soldier's life." — Times-Union, Albany.

"It is a pleasing combination of historical fact and fiction, and the author carefully avoids falsifying history in order to make his story more interesting. The book contains maps of value and the illustrations are not without historical import." — Union, Springfield.

"So far from showing any signs of exhaustion, his imaginative gifts seem to gain in strength and freshness as the years pass. . . . The book is full of realistic pictures of savage life as it actually exists, and the author's experiences enable him to depict warfare in the dark corners of the Empire with an accuracy of detail to be envied by most of his rivals in the same field of fiction." — The Outlook.

"Since the death of Mr. Henty no writer of boys' stories has made a more sensational advance in the estimation of boys and girls than has Captain Brereton." — The Standard.

New Books for 1910

THE GREAT AEROPLANE

A Tale of Adventures in Mid-air

Illustrated by EDWARD S. HODGSON

In these times, when flying is no longer an impossibility, it may be as well to bear in mind that the aeroplane and the dirigible airship of to-day are in all probability but the crude, experimental models of those to be hereafter designed. In this tale the writer has endeavored to draw a picture of the perfect flying vessel, not one bristling with intricate machinery, but a heavier-than-air machine of huge proportions and of extreme simplicity. Exciting incidents follow one another swiftly, so much so that the object for which the vessel was constructed is almost neglected. But, in the end, it is securely accomplished, and the Essex Ghost returns after a voyage which may be described as one of exceptional interest.

INDIAN AND SCOUT

A Tale of the Gold Rush to California

Illustrated by WILLIAM RAINEY, R. I.

The days of the Californian gold rush are not so long ago that they have lost interest to the present generation. This tale of adventure tells how Jack Kingsley's father sought his fortunes at the mines, and how, in course of time, Jack himself made a journey in that direction. Incidentally the tale gives a picture of those hardy, honest, rough-living men of the West, to whose very hardiness America owes much of her territory to-day.

THE INVISIBLE ISLAND

A Tale of the Gulf of Carpentaria

Illustrated by Charles M. Sheldon

This story tells how at the present time hordes of Chinamen are being smuggled into Australia along the shores of the shallow waters of the Gulf of Carpentaria, and is written by one who knows, and who has had dealings with them. Mackay discovers their landing place in a strange manner, and also one or two other things. He escapes, and is afterwards aided by young Edmund Howard and the miners of Eldorado camp in his search for the mysterious shores. Much fighting takes place between the various parties; but in the end the Chinese secret is revealed, Mackay's wonderful gold reef is found, and all ends as it should.

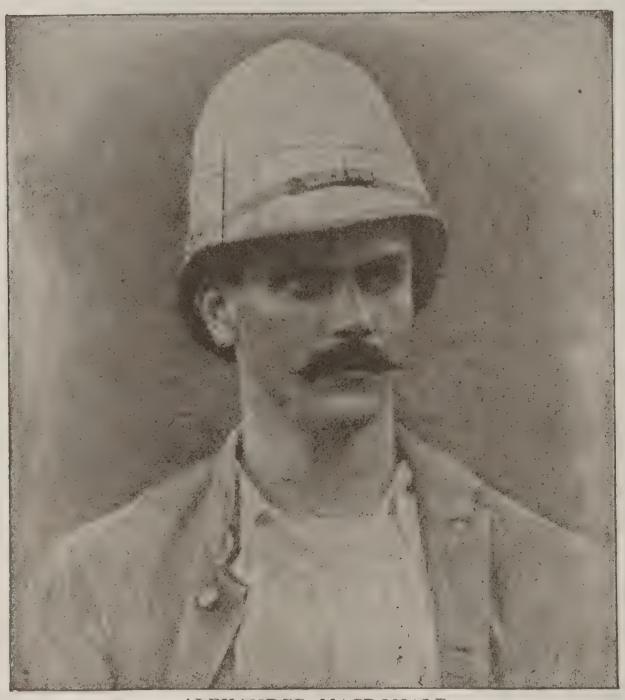
The White Trail. A Story of the Early Days of Klondike

The Island Traders. A Tale of the South Seas

The Lost Explorers. A Story of the Trackless Desert

The Pearl Seekers. A Story of Adventure in the Southern Seas



ALEXANDER MACDONALD

Mr. Alexander Macdonald started on his travels at the early age of sixteen. He celebrated his nineteenth birthday on the summit of the Chilcoot Pass while bound for Klondike at the first of the "rush," and was present in Dawson City at the time of the great "starve out" in the winter of 1897. Since that time he has led exploring expeditions in Australia, New Guinea, Borneo, and Malaysia, and has prospected for gold and gems in Africa, the South Seas, Sumatra, South America, and Asia. He fought through the Boer War with the Australians. He has travelled distances equal to fifteen times round the world. As a writer he belongs to the school of Ballantyne rather than to that of Henty.

ALEXANDER MACDONALD, F.R.G.S.

"Mr. Macdonald spins a good yarn, having been through much of it himself, and his descriptions have the value of a book of exploration." — Pall Mall Gazette.

"One of the great advantages of Mr. Macdonald's stories is the fact that they are always based on his own most interesting experiences. . . . His heroes are boys in quest of adventures, but he does not rely on any of the stock sensations for his material, for in The Pearl Seekers, when ordinary melodrama would prove weak and ineffective, he shows how a party of lads manage to overcome many seemingly overwhelming difficulties by means of the inventions of two of their number, who are clever and facile engineers." — Standard.

"Professor Macdonald, who has great success as a writer of boys' books, always draws upon his own wide experiences and his own knowledge of places and people for his material. Hence his stories are always true to life." — Portland (Maine) Advertiser.

"The White Trail, by Alexander Macdonald, deals in a delightful way with an actual journey and an actual people, and should serve to encourage energy and initiative and a broader sympathy for human kind in the youth of America." — Republican, St. Louis.

"Although intended mainly for boys well advanced in their teens, this story of the early days in the Klondike will be read with equal interest by adults. It is a story of real life in the gold regions of the frozen north, the author relating his own experiences on the long white trail and during the great 'starve out' in the winter of 1897." — Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph.

WEBSTER'S AMERICAN STANDARD DICTIONARY

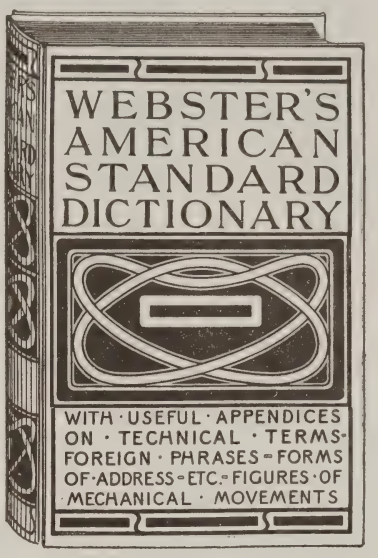
Revised and Corrected to Date

With useful Appendices on

Terms and Measures used in Physics, Engineering, etc. Foreign Words, Phrases, and Sayings; Abbreviations and Contractions; Forms of Address; Moneys of the World; Weights and Measures; Principal Mechanical Movements Illustrated.

The very latest words have been included

Aerodrome, Aeroplane, Banzai, Black-hand, Camorra, Dope, Frazzle, Joy-rider, Molly-coddle, Push-ball, Nature-faker, Sleeping-sickness, Taxi-cab and many others that have come into use since the last revision of the older dictionaries.



The Best and Most Compact Low-Priced Lexicon Obtainable

It combines a judicious condensation of bulkier dictionaries with the most modern meaning and pronunciation of English words. Special efforts were made in the orthography to give the best usage of the United States, and where two spellings were almost equally recognized they are both given.

The system adopted in indicating pronunciation is by respelling, the key being always printed in the lower margin of the pages.

The uncertainties arising from the conjugation of irregular verbs, the plurals or irregular nouns, etc., have been provided for in the different forms shown in connection with the words to which they belong. Thus the forms cropping, cropped, and cropt are given with the different verbs to crop; dying and died with die; the plurals of the noun die, i. e., dies and dice, are plainly distinguished; with dictum is shown its plural dicta, etc.

The appendices will prove especially valuable, in particular that one in which the latest terms commonly used in Electricity, Engineering, Physics, etc., are tabulated and explained at length, and the pictorial appendix which illustrates movements and devices in mechanics.

Finally, the publishers believe that the clearness of the definitions, the careful discrimination of the senses of the words, the large amount of matter the book contains, together with its typographical excellence, combine features which will appeal to the American who has use for a condensed lexicon.

Very convenient for the business man, home, desk and library. Invaluable to the teacher and scholar. 12mo (7⅜ x 5 inches), 1¼ inches thick. Nearly 500 pages. Fine cloth binding. Price, 50 cents

MY HIGH SCHOOL DAYS

A MEMORY BOOK

Decorations and Illustrations by L. J. BRIDGMAN

Alma Mater Edition

The happy days of life in High School, so dear to all girls, are too easily forgotten as years go by, and the pleasant association with some "chum," the delight of some dance, the memories of some teacher, kind, fond, and patient, quickly fade away as the "sweet girl graduate" enters upon her duties of womanhood. The college girl has her memory book, as has "My Lady" in society, and the younger set are now remembered in "My High School Days," decorated and illustrated by L. J. Bridgman. Here, from her entrance in High School through the four years to the day of her graduation, the school girl has a place for recording all her interests.

SOME PRESS OPINIONS

"Probably the most elaborate and complete work of its kind ever issued. Every page is delightfully and artistically decorated in color and is bound in a very attractive manner. The record can be kept as an artistic memento for years to come. There could scarcely be a more appropriate or more appreciated gift than this for the graduate." — Pittsburgh Press.

"A book to delight the heart of the girl graduate. It is a beautifully bound book, boxed, and contains, on decorated pages, spaces for graduating program, and all the other things that in after years will bring back such delightful memories to the young woman. The book, which is really a most artistic production, was the idea of Marion L. Peabody. As a hint for a graduation present, this book may well be kept in mind." — School Journal, Elizabeth, N. J.

"A sumptuously ornamented scrap book, designed for girl graduates who wish to commemorate the important events and incidents of their school or college career. The designs which ornament all the pages are artistic; if we were to indulge in the vernacular of the school girls we should say that the word 'scrumptious' best describes the book." — Sunday Union, Springfield, Mass.

MY LADY'S POINT OF VIEW

By A. J. IORIO

The pages are embellished with drawings and selections appropriate to the important matters concerning her daily life which in later years she takes so much enjoyment in referring to. The events to be recorded include all sorts of social diversions. Printed in two colors on highly finished paper. Bound in English crash cloth, titles and cover design in gold, gilt top. Size, 8 x 10. In a box matching the binding. Price, $2.50

THE COMMUTER'S GARDEN RECORD

Written and Illustrated by AMY CAROL RAND

The "Commuter's Garden Record" offers an opportunity to record all that is done in the flower garden, what is planted and when, giving a chance to note all successes — and failures — for several years. There are planting-tables, with general suggestions for the culture of about seventy-five of the old garden favorites, and a reminder of what to do in the garden month by month. The book will be of aid both to the amateur and the professional; to the former, it will open the door to garden success, and to the latter, it will furnish an opportunity to record the success that has already been attained. Printed in two colors on highly finished paper and bound in art canvas. Size, $8\frac{1}{4}$ x $7\frac{3}{4}$.

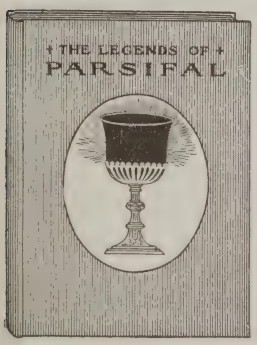
THE LEGENDS OF PARSIFAL

By MARY HANFORD FORD



There has long been a demand for a concise and careful account of Wagner's version of Parsifal and a comparison of the other accounts of the same legend. Mrs. Ford has made a careful study for many years of the Holy Grail in all its versions, and has been a most successful lecturer on this subject.

"There has perhaps never been given so clear and so simple an interpretation of these legends as in this volume, nor one so permeated with exalted thought and exquisite spiritual imagery." — Lillian Whiting.

THE VALUE OF FRIENDSHIP

Edited by FREDERIC LAWRENCE KNOWLES

The editor has aimed to gather the most notable sayings on friendship ever uttered by ancient or modern authors. Sentimentality is as carefully avoided as cynicism, and the note struck is sympathetic, manly, and sensible. The Introduction traces the influence of friendship on the development of races, institutions, and eminent individuals, covering the subject with remarkable completeness.

With an Introduction by Mrs. Louise Chandler Moulton

This volume, by the compiler of "The Value of Friendship," and "The Value of Courage," is really the last work of the late Mr. Knowles. POEMS FROM PUNCH

IN TWO VOLUMES

With Introductions by Sir Francis C. Burnand and Arthur Waugh

It must be reckoned one of the curiosities of literature that a source whence we have Hood's "Song of the Shirt," Tom Taylor's "Abraham Lincoln," and a host of other pieces which have given Punch its peculiar hold on popular favor should have lain so long neglected. The volumes are worthy of their contents; there is a characteristic introduction to Volume I by the oldest hand on Punch, Sir Francis C. Burnand, pleasantly retrospective and dealing with interesting questions of authorship, while that in Volume II is by Arthur Waugh, the celebrated critic.

Printed in heavy bold-face type on pure rag paper, deckled edges. Bound in an artistic combination of art linen and green cartridge paper, gilt top. Price, each, $2.00 net

A PAGEANT OF ELIZABETHAN POETRY

Edited, with an Introduction, by ARTHUR SYMONS

Every poem has been given in full, and great care has been taken to secure an accurate text. Nothing has been put in because it was unfamiliar, or left out because it was familiar. The attempt has been to marshal a pageant, not to compile a text-book.

The Athenæum says: "Lovers of poetry should rejoice in A Pageant of Elizabethan Poetry, edited by Mr. Arthur Symons. The book is charmingly printed and bound. . . . Mr Symons has a singularly delicate taste of his own which singles him out from the tribe of anthologists."

THE RED LETTER SHAKESPEARE

Edited by

E. K. CHAMBERS

Complete in 39 volumes

A Dainty, Handy, Scholarly Edition for the General Reader and the Book-lover

We desire to call attention to this most artistic NEW Edition of Shakespeare in single-play volumes for which by special arrangement with the English publishers we have secured the American rights. It is a dainty and distinctive edition, which will appeal to the scholar as well as the general reader. No trouble or expense has been spared to make it unapproachable in value or quality. Printed from specially selected old-style type in two colors — red and black — with decorative end papers, and title pages A charming feature of the Red Letter Shakespeare is that the names of the characters are printed full-out in red lettering, so that the reader is spared the task of memorizing the clumsy abbreviations so generally used. Moreover this use of color gives clearness and brightness to the pages.

To each play a short, suggestive appreciation is contributed by Mr. E. K. Chambers, the editor of the series.

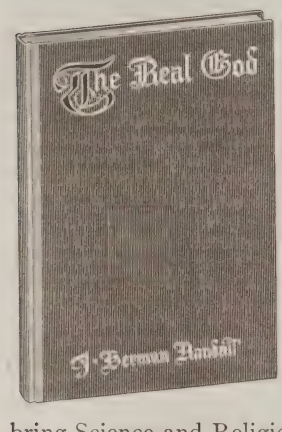
The NEW PHILOSOPHY OF LIFE SERIES

By J. HERMAN RANDALL

STIRRING ESSAYS ON THE SCIENTIFIC AND RELIGIOUS PRINCIPLES UNDERLYING THE NEW THOUGHT MOVEMENT



We are living to-day in the midst of a profound thought movement, which has found expression in many different forms, each embodying certain truths, and each open to criticism — Christian Science, Mental Science, Metaphysical Healing, Faith Cure, The Emmanuel Movement, various New Thought Centres, etc. The writer believes that the time has come when flippant ridicule, mere criticism and wholesale condemnation should give place to intelligent insight and wise discrimination; that it is possible to-day to separate the truth from the error, always attendant upon the appearance of new truth; that the truly Scientific and Religious principles underlying all these kindred phases of thought, can and should be clearly set forth, and their truth applied to human life in the whole range of its experience. In this series such an attempt is made, in the hope that the philosophy of life herein set forth may tend, for some minds at least, to bring Science and Religion into closer harmony, and help to throw new light upon the pathway that leads to fullness of Peace and Power.

I. The Real God.
1. The Universal Mind.
2. The Divinity of Man.

II. The Subconscious Mind.

OPINIONS OF PRESS

"Not only is its appearance, both in the matters of printing and binding, very attractive, but the treatise also merits attention." — Pall Mall Gazette.

". . . The illustrative hands, made plain by the printing of the diamonds and hearts in red, strike us as particularly well chosen." — Badminton Magazine.

THE BRIDGE WINNER

A Guide to Success at the Game of Bridge

By "CUT CAVENDISH"

The advice contained within these pages is of the soundest, the arrangement is good and by simple stages "Cut Cavendish" explains the why and the wherefore of each principle involved, making every point as clear and unelaborate as possible. The result is a bright and cheery book written in a happy vein, and easy to read, in which respect the author can claim a rare achievement, seeing that most books on cards are tedious in the extreme.

The book includes a most interesting chapter which deals with some of those differences of opinion that still divide many of the leading experts of the present day.

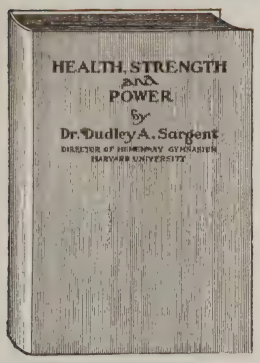
The New Authoritative Work on Physical Culture

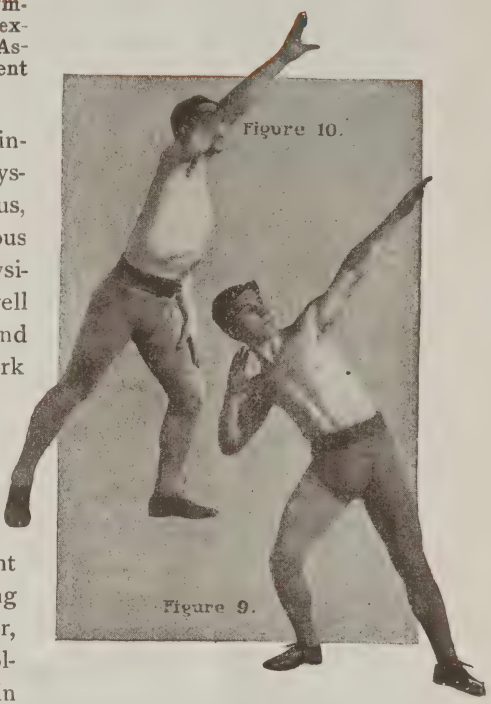
HEALTH, STRENGTH and POWER

By

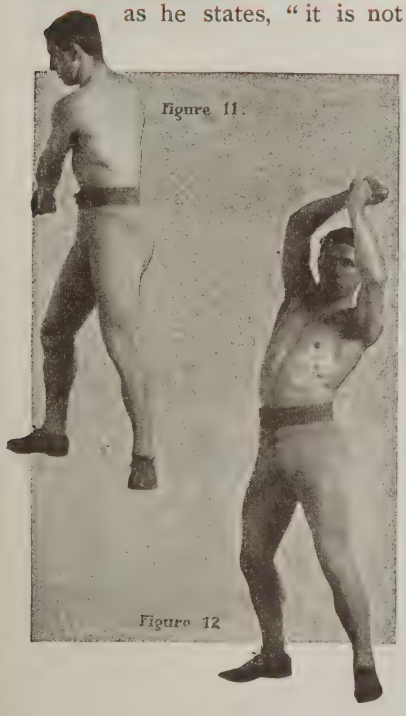
DUDLEY ALLEN SARGENT, A. M., Sc. D., M. D.



Director of Hemenway Gymnasium, Harvard University, ex-President of the American Association for the Advancement of Physical Culture



Doctor Sargent's many inventions of the modern system of gymnasium apparatus, together with his numerous articles and papers on physical training, are so well known that a new and thoroughly up-to-date work on Physical Culture by an author who is without doubt the recognized authority on the subject will command immediate interest. The general public are becoming more and more enthused on the science of cultivating Health and Strength. In this work Doctor Sargent has aimed to make it even more popular by devising a series of exercises which require no apparatus whatever. for, as he states, "it is not the athletic or college student in whose life physical activity plays a considerable part, but the professional or business man, who leads a sedentary life, and has no longer the incentive of youth nor spirit of athletic rivalry to urge him on."



Doctor Sargent has been director of Harvard's gymnasium since 1879, and his work there has made the students of the university, as a body — apart from those who engage in college athletics — probably the best physically equipped young men to be found anywhere. His exercises and methods have been adopted all over the world. Not only was most of the gymnastic apparatus now in general use invented by him and the manner of its use of his contriving, but many of the various drills devised to give exercise without the use of any more complicated mechanical assistance than dumb-bells and Indian Clubs.

With over one hundred half-tone illustrations from original photographs furnished by the author. 12mo, cloth, limp cover. Price, $1.75 net

Full flexible leather. Price, $3.00

Sonnets from the Portuguese. By ELIZABETH BARRETT BROWNING. 1
In the "Sonnets from the Portuguese," a most exquisite series of love poems, we have Mrs. Browning at her best. She has broken away from that stiffness and artificiality which characterizes her earlier poems, and in sentiment and lofty rhyme is at times truly Shakespearian.

Virginibus Puerisque. By ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON. 2
Since, unfortunately, most of our juvenile literature nowadays is the work of "hack" writers, it is refreshing to find a work for boys and girls written by a man of genius. "Virginibus Puerisque" stands high among Mr. Stevenson's writings, and is enjoyed by both old and young.

Friendship and Love. By RALPH WALDO EMERSON. 3
Mr. Emerson is no bookish theorist. He does not draw his conclusions from syllogisms, but from his personal observations of men and things. The essays on Friendship and Love, two of his most human, being subjects akin to each other, are published together as a single volume.

Heroism and Character. By RALPH WALDO EMERSON. 4
As Friendship and Love are linked, so Heroism and Character are complementary. In fact, we perceive a strong connection between the four subjects. For friendship deepens in love, and from love for one's neighbor, one's family, one's State, comes heroism, and heroism is the essential element of a noble character.

Poor Richard's Almanac. By BENJAMIN FRANKLIN. 5
A selection of the best sayings from the numerous issues of "Poor Richard." Helpful and inspiring; the work of a most practical mind, written for a most practical nation.

The School for Scandal. By SHERIDAN. 6
Sheridan's comedies are second only to Shakespeare's. "The School for Scandal," undoubtedly his masterpiece, has had an undiminished popularity from the moment it was published to the present day.

Destruction of Pompeii. By PLINY AND BULWER. 7
Two interesting descriptions of the Destruction of Pompeii: one by Pliny, the greatest scientist of the ancient world, who wrote as an eye-witness; the other the well-known and thrilling account from Lord Lytton's "Last Days of Pompeii."

Sir Roger de Coverley Papers. By ADDISON. 8
The famous "Sir Roger de Coverley Papers" are not only treasured by all students of English literature, but by historians as well. For nowhere do we find a finer description of English life in the eighteenth century than in these papers. Furthermore, in the character of Sir Roger we find the finest delineation in English literature of an ideal gentleman.

Thoughts of Marcus Aurelius. SELECTIONS. 9
Marcus Aurelius was the purest and loftiest of the pagan philosophers. "His great work, 'The Thoughts,'" says Lecky, "not only forms one of the most impressive, but also forms one of the truest books in the whole range of religious literature."

Lord Chesterfield's Letters. SELECTIONS. 10
These letters of sound counsel and practical advice, addressed to his son Philip, are what Lord Chesterfield's reputation rests upon, and it is through these that the name of Chesterfield has become symbolic of culture and refinement.

Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam. 11
The "Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam" is one of the greatest contributions that the East has given to literature. The subtle thought, the soft Oriental imagery, and the delicacy of the poetry will appeal to the poetic imagination of all ages.

Milton. BY LORD MACAULAY. 12
A profound and masterly essay on the leader of English literature of the seventeenth century by the leading literary critic of the nineteenth century.

Enoch Arden. BY ALFRED, LORD TENNYSON. 13
In "Enoch Arden" we have one of the most beautiful and pathetic poems in the English language. Had Tennyson never written another line, he would have gone down in history as one of the greatest poets of his time.

Rip Van Winkle and The Legend of Sleepy Hollow. BY WASHINGTON IRVING. 14
These immortal stories of Dutch life in colonial New York are the best pieces of writing that Mr. Irving contributed to literature. The pathos, quaintness, and wit are impressed upon the reader in a striking way.

Rochefoucauld's Maxims. 15
These maxims, written by a cavalier of Richelieu's times, one who knew the world as few have an opportunity of knowing it, are witty, subtle, and true. The author has grasped the whole of life, and weakness of human nature, of fashion and conventionalities are strongly depicted.

Rab and His Friends. BY DR. JOHN BROWN. 16
"Rab and His Friends," a story of a mastiff, full of beauty and pathos, is, in its line, only rivalled by "Black Beauty." In this volume the story of Marjorie Fleming, an interesting case of remarkable precociousness, is also published.

She Stoops to Conquer. BY OLIVER GOLDSMITH. 17
"She Stoops to Conquer" is a comedy abounding in the keenest wit and satire. Human nature is depicted by a masterly observer, and the characters of the play are true to life.

Old Christmas. BY WASHINGTON IRVING. 18
An ideal picture of an old-fashioned Christmas in rural England. The good old customs, and the quaint games handed down from generation to generation, are pictured in a most interesting manner.

Vision of Sir Launfal. BY JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL. 19
This great poem is drawn from the famous romance of King Arthur and the Holy Grail, a theme which has furnished inspiration to so many great minds. The "Vision of Sir Launfal" is the best of Lowell's shorter poems.

Leaves of Grass. SELECTIONS. BY WALT WHITMAN. 20
Walt Whitman is looked upon as the one distinctive American poet, the product of our New World democracy. Though perhaps lacking in grace, his poems are inspired by his enthusiasm and humanitarianism, and in every line the reader sees the personality of the poet, — noble, generous, and lofty, — a great man in the highest sense of the word.

Elegy and Other Poems. BY THOMAS GRAY. 21
The "Elegy in a Country Churchyard" occupies as secure a place among English classics as "Hamlet" or "Paradise Lost," but some readers may not realize that several other poems by Gray are equally perfect and impressive. This collection contains all of Gray's verse which is really worth knowing.

Sweetness and Light. BY MATTHEW ARNOLD. 22
An epoch-making essay, by one of the most cultured, practical, and inspiring minds of our century. Arnold's simplicity and charm of style, no less than his weighty message, have already given him an assured place among classic writers.

Golden Thoughts. BY ARCHBISHOP FENELON. 23
Judiciously made extracts from the letters of the great archbishop. Fenelon united in his personality the sweetness of the saint with the strength of the reformer, and his personal correspondence contains the very heart and soul of religious devotion.

Wit and Wisdom. BY SIDNEY SMITH. 24
Extracts from Smith's writing and conversations, which flash with repartee, good-tempered satire and brilliant strokes of wit, and are characterized throughout by shrewd, irresistible common sense. The comments on America and Americans are alone worth the price of the little book.

A Christmas Carol. BY CHARLES DICKENS. 25
This familiar story possesses perennial interest for young and old, and it never has been presented in more attractive form. Whether regarded as a ghost story, a character study, or a parable, the "Christmas Carol" is one of the most brilliant and absorbing tales in English literature.

Will o' the Mill and Biographical Sketch. By R. L. STEVENSON. *26

This little parable of a life contains a wonderful moral and is also an irresistibly fascinating story in itself, written in the most exquisite English. Many critics think it Stevenson's masterpiece. It is prefaced by a careful and adequate biographical sketch.

Men and Women. By ROBERT BROWNING. *27

Browning is known the world over for his deep-veined humanity and rare faculty of dramatic representation. These poems have as much red blood in them as the dramas of Shakespeare. The present volume contains all the principal favorites which have sung themselves into the memory of every reader who loves vigorous, manly poetry.

Napoleon Addresses and Anecdotes. 28

Napoleon was not only a consummate genius as general and ruler, he was also a man of extraordinary personality. So much of his magnetism and personal charm is preserved in these anecdotes and speeches, that we become completely en rapport with the great emperor, and cannot fail to share the enthusiasm of his contemporaries. The selections were made with greatest care especially for this edition.

Passion in the Desert, and an Episode in the Reign of Terror. Selected Prose Works of Honore de Balzac. 29

Balzac is thought by many competent authorities to be the greatest novelist of the world. His short stories are quite as remarkable in their way as his longer stories, and the very best of them are to be found in the present collection.

Poems of Sentiment. By BYRON. 30

Probably no poet in the English-speaking world has ever held as high and well recognized a position as a "sentimentalist" as George Gordon, Lord Byron. His master lyrics dealing with the subject of love, consisting principally of his shorter poems, have been selected and edited with the greatest care for this edition.

Some Fruits of Solitude. Reflections and Maxims. By WILLIAM PENN. *31

"To quote a book like this were impossible; at least one can hand it on, with a wrench, one to another. Some of the 'Fruits' are sounder, juicier, and grown against a sunnier wall of experience than others, but all are delicate, and the little basket which holds them will be found in all times and places a peaceful and sweet companion." — Robert Louis Stevenson.

Letters to a Young Man about Town. By WILLIAM MAKEPEACE THACKERAY. 32

These charming but comparatively little known essays originally appeared in Punch, and, until the present edition, have been reissued in a volume by themselves but once, and then in a privately printed book now extremely rare. In his humorous and satirical manner, Thackeray shows up the follies and life of a young man about town in the middle of the nineteenth century.

Golden Wings. A Prose Romance and a Poem. By WILLIAM MORRIS. 33

Two early productions of Morris's with the same title. The Prose Romance, written in 1856 while still a student at Oxford, and the Poem two years later, both of which show the irresistible and quaint charm apparent in all the later writings of this architect, painter, designer, craftsman, socialist, and author, — who, on the death of Tennyson, was thought by many would be the next Poet Laureate.

Selected Poems. By JOHN BOYLE O'REILLY. 34

Through several causes, but not lack of merit, Boyle O'Reilly is fast becoming merely a name to the generation of to-day. Therefore, pains have here been taken to perpetuate the choicest productions of his pen, — poems worthy of rank with the masterpieces of English literature. The volume is prefaced with an interesting personal sketch of O'Reilly, by Mr. William A. Hovey.

The Discourses of Epictetus. SELECTIONS. *35

In Sir John Lubbock's "List of the One Hundred Best Books," the Bible is first, the "Thoughts of Marcus Aurelius" second, and "Epictetus" third. The discourses here given have been carefully selected, and in each case the English revised with utmost care.

Evangeline. By HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW. *36

The purity, sweetness, and refinement with which Longfellow delineates the affections of the heart make his poetry the most welcome of visitants at the domestic fireside, and of all his poems, "Evangeline" is probably the most popular.

The Holy Grail. By ALFRED, LORD TENNYSON. *37

This idyl, which must rank as one of the greatest of Tennyson's poetical achievements, came to him suddenly, "as if by a breath of inspiration." Of it the poet said, "I feared for years to touch the subject of the Holy Grail, and when I began, finished it in a fortnight."

Atala. By François René Auguste Chateaubriand. With a biographical sketch of the author. 38

A tale of an Indian maiden, charmingly written by one who in the old colonial days traversed the solitary wilds of North America, and who is a lover of nature and quaint Indian lore.

Armande. By Edmond and Jules de Goncourt. Translated by Alfred E. Haserick and with an introduction by W. D. Orcutt. 39

Of the Brothers Goncourt, Victor Hugo says, "Charming writers, two minds from which springs a single jet of genius." Armande is their masterpiece.

Corsair and Lara. By Lord Byron. With an introduction by M. F. Sweetser. 40

The extraordinary interest at the present time in Byron demands that two of his complete works be presented in this series. No better understanding of this "wild child of nature" can be obtained than in Corsair and Lara.

The Gold Bug. By Edgar Allan Poe. With a biographical sketch of the author. 41

A story of great effect and absorbing interest, one of those rare books that once opened is not closed until the last paragraph is finished.

Juliet and Romeo. From the Italian of Luigi da Porto. With an introductory essay by Dr. W. J. Rolfe. 42

A translation of the original story from which Shakespeare conceived the plot of "Romeo and Juliet." This edition is edited by Dr. W. J. Rolfe, the greatest living authority on Shakespeare.

L'Arlesienne. By Alphonse Daudet. With a biographical sketch by M. F. Sweetser. 43

L'Arlesienne is the best of Daudet's dramas, and is responsible for his fame as a playwright as well as a novelist.

Manon Lescaut. Vol. I. By L'Abbé Prévost. With an introduction by M. F. Sweetser. 44

Manon Lescaut. Vol. II. 45

Not only in French, but in the emotional literature of our world has Manon Lescaut taken a classical place, and is a profound lesson drawn from weakness of human nature.

Paul and Virginia. By Bernardin de St. Pierre. With a biographical sketch of the author. 46

One of the most beautiful works in romantic literature, a production which gave St. Pierre everlasting fame.

Peter Schlemihl. By Adelbert von Chamisso. With a biographical sketch of the author. 47

This fantastic tale has attained world-wide fame. Founded on the old superstition that the devil could take a man's shadow, poor Peter is driven from town to town and wanders over the whole world. To the young this story appeals as a fairy-tale, but for others it has a deep ethical significance.

Werther. By J. W. von Goethe. With a biographical sketch of the author. 48

To appreciate the romantic and sentimental nature of the mighty Goethe one must read Werther. Though o'ershadowed by the author's other works, yet Werther alone would have made him immortal.

Undine. By Friedrich, Baron de La Motte-Fouqué 49

The charming and graceful narrative, Undine, is a gem in German literature. It breathes of the fresh fragrance of the woods, and is animated by beautiful thoughts that people the sea and air with nymphs and spirits.

Tales of a Wayside Inn. By Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. 50

A long cherished plan of Longfellow's, containing some of the best of his shorter poems, the first part of which was brought out in 1863, and which met with immediate success. One poem, that of the "Midnight Ride of Paul Revere," is perhaps Longfellow's most famous short poem.

The King of the Golden River. By John Ruskin. 51

"The King of the Golden River" was written in 1841, at the request of a very young lady, and solely for her amusement, without any idea of publication. Later, with the passive assent of Ruskin, the charming allegory was publicly printed, and literature is thereby the gainer of this most pleasing little work.

Love Letters of a Violinist. By Eric Mackay. 52

Originally published in England, with the name of the author suppressed, these charming love sonnets created much discussion as to authorship, some even claiming they were the work of Swinburne, — from whom only it seemed could originate the fertility of thought, grace of language, ingenuity, skill in the ars poetica, wealth of words, and classic resources.

Sketches of Young Couples. By Charles Dickens. 53

Some of the earlier sketches of the immortal Dickens, in which, however, are seen the clear and wonderful characterization unequalled by any other modern author, and even unsurpassed in his later and better known works. His people live before you.

The Man Without a Country. By Edward Everett Hale. 54

Written to foster patriotism during the Civil War, "The Man Without a Country" still holds to-day as large a claim as ever on the English-reading public, and by its production alone Dr. Hale can claim the place of one of the greatest, if not the greatest, of living Americans.

Snow-Bound. By John Greenleaf Whittier. 55

"'Snow-bound' may fairly be said to sum up Whittier's personal experience, and yet so absolutely free is it from egotism that it has taken its place as the representative poem of New England country life quite assurely as Burns's 'The Cotter's Saturday Night' expresses one large phase of Scottish life," says H. E. Scudder.

Salome. By Oscar Wilde. 56

Originally published in French, "Salome" was translated into English the following year, and since then translations have appeared in Spanish, Swedish, German, Polish, and Russian, showing the truth of the German statement that to-day Oscar Wilde is a "World's Poet" and "Salome" a "World's Play."

The Ballad of Reading Gaol. By Oscar Wilde. 57

Only when neglected and despised, ill and miserable, did sincere feeling bring forth in Oscar Wilde his one great poem, "The Ballad of Reading Gaol;" the utter hopelessness of the condemned felon is communicated to the reader's mind in all its gruesome intensity. An account of Wilde's life while in prison by one of the warders of Reading Gaol is appended to the volume.

Sesame and Lilies. By John Ruskin. 58

However varied Ruskin's writings are they are ever inspired with an artistic spirit and a desire to awaken a love for the beautiful. In these charming essays on literature and other subjects no better example of his strong ethical temperament can be found.

Poems from Punch. Selected By Rev. Albert E. Sims. 59

Throughout the world this weekly paper devoted to humorous and satirical comments on current events is known. It is doubtful, however, if the whole story of its origin will ever be known; but its first issue was July 17, 1841, and this careful selection dates from that year. Among its contributors are to be found the foremost writers of the last century.

Lady Montagu. Selected Letters. 60

Lady Mary Montagu, who lived from 1690 to 1762, derived her marvellous literary talents from her relationship to Henry Fielding the novelist and Sir John Evelyn the diarist. As wife of the then ambassador to Turkey she saw and wrote many interesting and original accounts of Eastern life and customs.

Courtship of Miles Standish. 61

By Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

The incident on which the story of The Courtship of Miles Standish is based was a tradition in the family of the author and is a good portrayal of early colonial life, showing the relations existing between the colonists and the Indians.

Unto This Last. By John Ruskin. 62

Four essays nominally upon wealth and the acquisition thereof, feelingly described by the writer himself as "the truest, rightest-worded and most serviceable thing I have ever written." Present day developments strikingly justify the reasonings and conclusions of this pioneer sociologist and altruist.

Duty of Happiness and other Essays.
By Sir John Lubbock. 63

Thoughts and quotations in which this renowned philosopher has taken the most comfort in times of depressed spirits, hoping in reprinting the substance of them that they may be of use to others also.

The Value of Time and other Essays. 64
By Sir John Lubbock.

Further maxims and conclusions of a great and wise optimist as well as a thoroughly modern thinker and teacher. In style and matter they deserve an equal place among the productions of the great classic writers.

for 1910-1911

The growing popularity of the BON TON line has encouraged the publishers to renewed efforts, and while the general character of the series has been maintained the beautiful and original designs exceed anything heretofore published. Many new conceits in remembrances for Christmas, New Year's, Easter and Birthdays are offered, and the line has been greatly improved and enlarged. The paper used is the finest that can be procured, consisting of hand made linen, Wedding stock, Verde Onyx, etc. Printed in Missal style in gold and colors, giving an effect that the most perfect lithography cannot produce. The appropriate sentiments are carefully selected, every letter being original and specially drawn by Iorio, Ormond, as well as other well-known artists. The borders, no two of which are alike in any number, are dainty and effective. A special feature this year is a new Van Dyke sentiment, which is published exclusively in this line.

THE CAMBRIDGE HISTORY OF ENGLISH LITERATURE

Edited by A. W. Ward, Litt.D., Master of Peterhouse, and A. R. Waller, M.A.

This work will be published in fourteen royal octavo volumes of about 500 pages each, and will cover the whole course of English literature from Beowulf to the end of the Victorian age. As in the case of The Cambridge Modern History each chapter will, so far as is possible, be the work of a writer specially familiar with the subject; and the editors will be jointly responsible for the work as a whole.

The following list indicates approximately the scope of the volumes:

1. From the Beginnings to the Cycles of Romance.
2. The End of the Middle Ages.
3. Renascence and Reformation.
4. Prose and Poetry: Sir Thomas North to Michael Drayton.
5, 6. The Drama to 1642 I and II.
7. The Caroline Age.
8. The Age of Dryden.
9. The Age of Swift and Pope.
10. The Rise of the Novel: Johnson and his Circle.
11. The Earlier Georgian Age.
12. The Romantic Revival.
13, 14. The Victorian Age I and II.

Price, $2.50 each volume.

Subscription price for the complete work $31.50, payable in fourteen instalments of $2.25 on publication of the separate volumes.

Volumes I, II, III and IV are now ready.

Extracts from Press Notices

"This work, when completed, will be as notable a monument of industry and scholarship as the History planned by Lord Acton."—Pall Mall Gazette

"The editors of this volume...have produced a book which is indispensable to any serious student of English literature. The individual articles are in several instances contributions of great value to the discussion of their subjects, and one of them is of first-rate importance in English literary history."—Athenæum (on Volume II)

"For the general reader attracted to the history of our literature the sixteenth century may be said to be the earliest time at which that history becomes widely interesting. Presented as it is with a fulness which admits of treatment of the lesser lights that have to be ignored in the textbooks, this volume will be found to set forth that period most interestingly and informingly....The chapters, too—though it is scarcely necessary to emphasise this to those who have seen the earlier portions of the history—are no bald summaries of facts and dates; they are deeply interesting essays embodying the latest scholarship."—Daily Telegraph (on Volume III)

A catalogue of all the double stars visible in the northern hemisphere, discovered since the earliest records, with all the measures and other observations from Herschel in the seventeenth century to the latter part of 1906. In volume 1 the stars are given in order of right ascension, in tabular form, in eleven columns, giving respectively the general number, the name of the double star, a reference to one of the principal star catalogues in which the star is found, the right ascension, the declination, the measured position-angle, the measured distance, the magnitudes of the components, the date of the measures given, the observer and number of observations, and lastly brief notes concerning colors, etc. The first portion of this volume contains some fifty pages of introductory matter, including ten indexes to the various observers, classes of stars, etc., enabling the user to find at once any special star, or class of stars, without a knowledge of the star places. Volume 2 contains the notes and complete references to all the observations of each of the 13,665 double stars. All published orbits of the binary systems and the proper motions of the brighter stars are given. The history of each pair includes a selection of the best measures showing motion, if any, and an examination of the material questions suggested by the measures. Some 600 diagrams, drawn to exact scale, are given to show the relative change in the systems having decided orbital and proper motions.

11. Newcomb, Simon. A Statistical Inquiry into the Probability of Causes of the Production of Sex in Human Offspring. Octavo, 34 pages . $0.25

The above paper is an attempt to apply a rigorous theory of probable inference to questions of genetic biology, taking statistical data as the basis of the inquiry. The author in this case strayed outside his professional field and undertook this work with the belief that the treatment of statistical data generally on a large scale by the methods of probable induction would lead to important results to the science of the future and to conclusions on questions which elude all direct investigation. Among the topics discussed are "Preponderance of male births," "Is the ratio of male to female births the same in all races?" "Inquiry whether any unisexual tendency exists among parents," "Unisexual tendency in multiple births," "Processes suggested by the statistics of multiple births," "Influence of the age of the parent on sex," "Supposed influence of other conditions," "Mathematical theory of the effect of unisexual tendency."

23. Castle, W. E. Heredity of Coat Characters in Guinea-pigs and Rabbits. (Paper No. 1, Station for Experimental Evolution.) Octavo, 78 pages, 6 plates, 8 text figures $0.50

This work gives the results of the author's experiments from their beginning in 1900 until the middle of the year 1904. The fundamental colors and the color patterns of guinea-pigs are for the first time analyzed; the existence of latent characters (factors, of the present time) is discovered; and a case of blending character (lop-earedness in rabbits) examined. The recessiveness of albinism, of smooth coat, and of long coat are pointed out, and the imperfection of dominance in many cases is recognized.

A first study in America—the home of the evening primrose—of its relationships and the inheritance of its characters. The home of Oenothera lamarckiana is traced; the various native primroses are described; some of their hybrids are fully worked out and the dominance of characters considered. Further evidence of mutation in the evening primrose in new soil was forthcoming. The paper concludes with a statistical comparison by Dr. Shull of Oenothera lamarckiana with nanella and rubrinervis. The variation polygons in stature of lamarckiana and nanella are shown to be discontinuous as are also those of the number of branches of lamarckiana and rubrinervis. Even in the form of the leaves lamarckiana and rubrinervis show clear differences in the mode and range of variation.

Part II, Optical Study; by J. P. IDDINGS, with an Introduction by G. F. BECKER. Octavo, 95 pages, 26 plates, 25 text figures $1.75

An investigation of the relation between the feldspars of the lime-soda series undertaken partly in an endeavor to settle an old question of great petrological interest and partly to establish the fact that minerals in solution with one another differ in no essential particular from other solutions and obey the same fundamental laws. The materials are chemically pure feldspar types prepared in the laboratory; the methods are those of quantitative chemistry, physics and physical-chemistry, and the field covers the entire temperature range of feldspar formation up to 1540°C. Many of the phenomena occurring at these extreme temperatures differ widely from those commonly observed at ordinary temperatures and are thus broadly interesting from the viewpoint of the properties of matter. In particular, it was discovered that among the minerals it is not uncommon for the solid state to persist for hours or even days at a temperature considerably above the melting-point—a phenomenon which has never been observed before.

32. Dean, Bashford. Chimæroid Fishes and their Development. Quarto, 194 pages, 11 plates, 144 text figures $4.00

A general account of a group of fishes which by some investigators has been described as the most primitive of all vertebrates. The present memoir considers this claim especially from the evidence contributed by the fossil members of the group, and by the embryonic history of a living species, the Californian Chimæra colliei. It is shown that chimæroids are widely modified rather than primitive, and that in all probability they are descendants of the early type of the Port Jackson shark (Cestracion). The work is illustrated by beautifully executed text figures and colored plates, and presents a complete list of the literature of the subject.

Some of the more important finds noted were made by the author. The chief purpose of this contribution is to describe the results of investigations on the structural features of the species and genera of this important group of plants. These investigations had their origin in an attempt to apply physical methods in studying the nature of verse. The work was begun at Yale University, and was continued at Munich, where a laboratory was installed and valuable assistance received from the Psychological Laboratory of the University of Munich. The work was later continued at the Psychological Laboratory of the University of Berlin. The volume gives an account of the apparatus used in recording sounds and of the methods applied in obtaining speech curves. A chapter on qualitative analysis indicates how phonetic facts may be read directly from the speech curves without measurement. It is also explained how such fundamental factors of speech as melody, duration, and amplitude can be obtained from the curves by simple methods of measurement. The method of harmonic analysis is carefully considered and the theories of vowel productions are discussed and detailed examples of vowel analysis are given.

Volume 1 records the results of an expedition by the author in 1904, having as its object a study of the monuments recording the relations of ancient Egypt to foreign countries, especially to Asia and Europe—monuments which are mostly direct contributions to Biblical studies and in many ways elucidate the history of the whole world. Professor Müller sought especially to secure final, or at least better, copies of the most important "known" texts rather than to obtain "new" material.

Volume 2 is a continuation of the above and records the author's researches in 1906.

This publication describes an extended series of researches on the electrical conductivity of aqueous solutions through a wide range of temperature (18° to 306°). The special apparatus which had to be constructed for the purpose is fully described. The conductivity results obtained with seventeen different salts, acids, and bases at various concentrations are presented in detail; and these results are discussed with reference to the migration-velocities of the constituent ions and the degree of ionization and hydrolysis of the substances themselves. From the hydrolysis measurements the ionization-constant of water is derived for temperatures between 0 and 306°. The general conclusions to which all these researches have led are presented in a comprehensive summary at the end of the work.

66. Goss, W. F. M. High Steam Pressures in Locomotive Service. Octavo, 144 pages, 120 text figures, 12 plates $1.25

A study based upon experimental investigations concerning the effect of changes in steam pressure upon the efficiency of steam locomotives. A basis for discussion is given in the results of 100 locomotive tests arranged in six series, a definite boiler pressure being assigned to each series. The range of pressure was varied from 120 pounds to 240 pounds per square inch. The presentation includes a description of the research and of the means employed in its advancement; a discussion of difficulties in operating a locomotive under very high steam pressures; a statement of facts concerning boiler and engine performance under different pressures, concerning machine friction, and concerning the degree of efficiency attending the performance of work at the draw-bar; and a concluding discussion with reference to the more general question of boiler-pressure versus boiler-capacity as a factor in economic operation. Four appendices present respectively a description of the locomotive experimented upon, methods and data derived from tests, general data concerning the weight of boilers, and a file of typical indicator-cards. One result of the entire investigation is to the effect that single expansion locomotives using saturated steam are most efficient when operated under a boiler pressure of 180 pounds, that when this limit has been reached any possible further increase in weight should be utilized in securing increased boiler capacity rather than higher boiler pressures.

The object of the exploration was to search for evidence for or against the Central Asiatic origin of early cultures, with especial reference to the hypothesis of a so-called Asiatic Aryan home. The volume of the Reconnaisance Expedition of 1903 contains the results of the separate expeditions of Prof. W. M. Davis, of Harvard University, of Mr. Ellsworth Huntington, and of Professor Pumpelly and Mr. R. W. Pumpelly. These results are chiefly:

1. The corroboration and extension of the evidence of an extensive Glacial and Post-Glacial inland sea.

2. The independent determination of at least three Glacial and two inter-Glacial phases of the Glacial Period in the Tien Shan and on the Pamir.

3. The observation of a vast number of ruined sites of all ages, some of which were evidently of very remote age.

The two volumes of 1904 treat of the archeological and physiographic results of the Second Expedition with especial reference to the excavations at Anau and incidentally at Merv.

This publication will be of especial importance to the student of mediæval literature, particularly to all interested in the study of the mass of fiction centering around the immortal King Arthur of Great Britain. It represents the first attempt to produce a complete printed text of the whole of the Vulgate Cycle comprising the early history of the Holy Grail, the prose-rendering of Robert de Borron's Merlin and the Book of Arthur; the huge compilation of adventures known as the Book of Syr Lancelot of the Lake; the Quest of the Holy Grail; and the Death of Arthur.

The text is a faithful reproduction of one of the six manuscripts known containing the entire Vulgate Cycle, viz., the Add. MS. 10292-10294 of the British Museum. It has been collated, supplemented, and corrected by help of other manuscripts representing only certain sections of the cycle in the same library and in some special cases by the help of manuscripts in the Bibliothèque Nationale, of Paris. The lines are numbered and reference numbers to other manuscripts and printed editions are added throughout. Ample side-notes in English are supplied.

In his Introduction Dr. Sommer briefly outlines the results of his studies on the genesis of the Vulgate Cycle. His views differ in many essential points from those hitherto accepted as probable or correct. An exhaustive index raisonné of names and places will be a feature of the work. The six volumes will be printed on Strathmore Japan paper by the Riverside Press of Cambridge, Mass.

76. Richards, T. W. The Compressibilities of the Elements, and Their Periodic Relations. Octavo, 67 pages, 8 text figures $0.50

Until this investigation was undertaken almost nothing was known about the compressibility of the elements. The monograph describes experiments carried out by the new method detailed in publication No. 7. Thirty-five of the solid and liquid elements were investigated—enough to show that the compressibilities of the elements are distinctly related periodically with one another as well as with other properties, such as volatility and atomic volume. Among the elements investigated, silicon was least affected by pressure, having a compressibility less than one-twentieth of that of mercury, and caesium was found to be the most compressible among the solid elements, having a compressibility about fifteen times that of mercury. Liquid chlorine was found to be about half again as compressible as this; and the other solid and liquid elements have values ranging between these extremes.

An investigation into the influence on screw propeller performance of the three chief factors, (1) pitch ratio, (2) slip ratio, (3) area ratio. Forty-two model propellers of 12-inch diameter were employed covering variation in pitch ratio from 0.9 to 2.1 and in area ratio from 0.18 to 0.72, each propeller being tested through a range of slip from 10 per cent to 40 per cent. Measurements were made permitting the determination for these model propellers of thrust, work absorbed, and efficiency. The reduced results are shown in various forms, tabular and graphical, and their application to problems of propeller design is discussed. Similar results are also given for some 47 combinations of two propellers on one shaft, comprising various arrangements of the above propellers as to relative pitch ratio, distance apart and aspect of blades.

The physiological rather than the physical view of transpiration is favored by the results. Some new facts concerning guard-cells tend to show that these organs are secretory rather than photosynthetic. Methods of fixing stomatal structures for examination and a great mass of data bearing on the daily periodicity of transpiration is given. An important contribution on a much-vexed question.

In preparing the above volumes the term economic has been liberally interpreted. The index embraces reports of the boards of agriculture, charities and corrections, education, public works and public health, banking, insurance, railroad and tax commissions, bureaus of labor and vital statistics, climate and crop bulletins, geological surveys, fish, game, and forest commissions, auditors' and treasurers' reports, immigration, sewerage and water-supply, roads, canals and river conservancy, governors' messages, and reports of attorneys general. Particular care has been taken in reading the above-mentioned reports to note recommendations, suggestive comment and especially the character of the tabulations. A checklist of the entire file of reports accompanies each subject. The indexed material is arranged chronologically under each subject. Thus the student is able to trace the historical development of each economic subject as it is reflected in the documents of an individual state. The work is published by states, a single volume to a state, and is designed to cover the period from the adoption of the Federal Constitution to the close of the year 1904.

Vol. 2. The Mechanics of the Earthquake. By H. F. REID. VIII+192 pages, 2 plates, 62 text figures $2.00

This is the report of the State Earthquake Investigation Commission appointed by the Governor of California to study the earthquake of April 18, 1906. The fault where the earthquake originated is a part of a larger physiographic feature known as the San Andreas rift. This rift and the geology of the coast system of mountains are carefully described in the first volume, which is mainly descriptive. Then follow detailed accounts of the displacements along all parts of the fault and descriptions of the effect and intensity of the shock in all parts of California and the neighboring states, where it was felt. All the phenomena observed are described, including the visible undulations of the ground, the formation of cracks, fissures, landslides, etc. The permanent displacements of the ground, as determined by geodetic measurements, are given, and the positions of certain monuments erected for the purpose of determining future slips on the fault are recorded. Experiments made with a shaking machine to investigate the influence of the character of the foundation on the destructive effects of the vibrations are described.

The second volume, on the mechanics of the earthquake, contains a theoretical discussion of the phenomena described in the first volume. It traces the forces required to cause the rupture at the fault to drags applied from below, and points out that the rupture was necessarily preceded by a relative displacement of regions on opposite sides of the fault, which suggests a method of anticipating certain earthquakes. The records obtained by seismographs in all parts of the world are given and discussed. A very complete mathematical theory of seismographs is given.

This work constitutes an advanced mathematico-physical treatise on the statics and the kinetics of the atmosphere and the ocean. Part I investigates the static properties and Part II the kinetic properties. The development and the application of the theory are illustrated by numerous examples, diagrams, weather-maps, and observed meteorological and hydrographical data. Numerous auxiliary tables are given to facilitate the interconversion and the use of such data.

The chief masses of material in London for the history of the United States are those in the Public Record Office. A volume relating to these, upon which Professor Andrews has expended a large amount of time and labor, would naturally have had precedence over this present work; but its publication has had to be deferred on account of the large movement of reclassification which the Public Record Office has resolved upon in respect to the Colonial Office papers and other portions of the whole. Accordingly the present volume, though naturally supplementary, has been brought out first in order. Professor Andrews has furnished an itemized list, with proper explanations and comments, of all those papers in the library of the British Museum which relate to the history before 1783 of the United States and all other British portions of North America. This he has followed with an account of the materials in the Privy Council Office. Miss Davenport has furnished detailed statements of the materials for American history preserved in the archives of the House of Lords, in the library of the Archbishop of Canterbury at Lambeth, in that of the Bishop of London at Fulham, and in other archives, public and semi-public, civil and ecclesiastical, in London. Professor Andrews concludes the volume with an itemized list of the American papers in the Bodleian Library and in other libraries of Oxford and Cambridge. The volume is minutely indexed.

100. Ward, William Hayes. The Seal Cylinders of Western Asia. Quarto, XXIX+428 pages, 1500 text figures $7.50

These seal cylinders were of the size of a large or small spool, purely cylindrical or with the surface concave and in the latest Persian period convex and barrel-shaped. Every owner of property had to have one of the cylinders. The engravings on them were usually figures of the gods worshipped by the owners, or scenes of agriculture, war, or the chase. Later the owner's name would be added in cuneiform characters with the name of his father and that of his favorite god. Almost every page has several illustrations, so that the student of history, civilization, and art has here a body of material and conclusions not hitherto accessible to scholars.

The volume may be described as an investigation of the earliest art of Babylonia and its later ramifications, showing the sources of that stream of culture which finally overflowed in Greek art and civilization. From the period of perhaps 4000 B. C., long before the use of iron, if not before that of bronze, the course of art and culture and religion is followed as it spread over Persia on the east and as far as the Mediterranean Sea and Cyprus on the west, including Assyria, the Hittite Empire of Asia Minor, Syria, and Phoenicia. Thus the investigation reaches down to about 600 B. C., when the seal cylinder gave way to seals of other sorts, owing to the growing disuse of clay tables for writing and the substitution of the simpler cone seal and scaraboid in place of the cylinder.

105. Lehmer, Derrick N. Factor Table for the First Ten Millions, containing the smallest factor of every number not divisible by 2, 3, 5, or 7 between the limits 0 and 10017000. Folio, XIV+476 pages.

Bound in leather and buckram $20 00
Unbound $18.00

This table furnishes the smallest divisor of every number up to the limit 10017000. The multiples of 2, 3, 5, and 7 are not listed as being easily obtainable from inspection. At the same time the failure to find a given number in the table is evidence that it is a multiple of one of these numbers. The omission of such numbers greatly reduces the bulk of the tables and adds very slightly to the complexity of the arrangement.

A list of smallest divisors really serves to find all of the divisors of a number, for one may divide out the smallest factor as listed in the table and then proceed to obtain the smallest divisor of the resulting quotient. This process may be continued until a quotient is obtained which is a prime.

Factor tables for the first nine millions have already been published, but are for the most part unobtainable. The tables herewith published have been compared entry for entry with the previously printed tables and what is believed to be a complete list of errors is also given in the Introduction. The tenth million has been checked against a table in manuscript by Kulik deposited in the Vienna Academy of Sciences. Comparison with all of these tables has been made five times (six for the first three millions). The tables were printed by photographic methods which are believed to eliminate many errors, which commonly occur by the falling out or breaking off of types.

The problem of finding the factors of a given number is important in itself and is constantly met with in the theory of numbers and in the theory of groups. The allied problem of finding the number of primes between given limits makes a reliable list of primes of the first consequence. This list can now be made as far as the first ten millions, it is believed, with absolute confidence. Computations of the number of primes in the successive millions, and indeed in shorter intervals, tally exactly with the counts made from these tables as far as these counts have been made.

Although this volume refers more especially to the phenomena of snake venom, it covers much broader ground. The first fifty pages are devoted to a descriptive and systematic morphological and a distributional account of the poisonous snakes of the world, over 300 forms being enumerated followed by a description of the poison apparatus. In a short chapter on the phylogeny of poisonous snakes, the author states that the poison gland was probably the first of the specialized structures to appear, and that the elaborate, erectile, grooved fangs were of later development. The poison gland "is equivalent to, if not identical with, the parotid of the mammalia?" The remainder of the work is given up to a consideration of the venom itself. There are chapters on its physical and chemical properties; symptoms of venom poisoning in man and in lower animals; and on the organism as a whole and upon specific organs and tissues, this latter subject being more fully treated than any other.

115. Boss, Lewis. Preliminary General Catalogue of 6188 Stars for the Epoch 1900, including those visible to the naked eye and other well-determined Stars. Quarto. XXXVII+345 pages $7.00

This volume contains the results of a comprehensive and thorough discussion as to the positions for 1900, proper-motions, and other useful particulars in relation to all stars in both hemispheres that are visible to the naked eye. About 2,000 stars fainter than the sixth magnitude are also included because they are among the stars which have been most precisely and frequently observed in the past. The primary object of this work was to employ substantially all useful evidence of observation in determination of proper-motions with a high degree of precision—especially in the systematic sense. Results of researches leading up to the present work have been published in Volume XXVIII of the Astronomical Journal. Therein are described the steps by which the results of the various original catalogues of observed star-positions are made systematically consistent—one with another, and with a resulting normal system. These and subsequent labors in preparation of the present work have led to various useful results, additional to those concerning the main issue—computation of systematically accurate proper-motions. Thus, the present work contains very carefully computed positions of all the stars suitable to be classed as standard stars. The systematic errors of observation due to magnitude-equations of the respective observers have been eliminated from the right-ascensions of the Catalogue with substantial success. In the Catalogue is incorporated a Normal Uranometry prepared by Dr. S. C. Chandler. This is founded upon all the most important measurements and estimates of brightness, rendered homogeneous by the application of systematic corrections for color and position in the sky. Three appendices contain respectively:

Appendix I. Ephemerides of Polar Stars.
Appendix II. Notes to the Catalogue, Periodic Proper-Motion, etc.
Appendix III. Systematic Corrections and Weights.

related to genera, species, etc., and thus establish a principle which importance in the explanation of heredity, mutations, the influe

121. Davenport, C. B. Inheritance of Characteristics in Domestic Fowl. (Paper No. 14, Station for Experimental Evolution.) Quarto, 100 pages, 12 colored plates $4.50

In the newer studies of heredity attention is directed to the characteristics of organisms, taken one at a time. Great diversity in the method of inheritance is found. The present work considers behavior of ten morphological characters and the principal colors of poultry. Some characters are evidently simple and are inherited in accordance with the pure Mendelian formula; others show marked deviations from it, such as "blending" and imperfect dominance. Even in such cases, however, a segregation of characters takes place in the germ-plasm. The characters analyzed in detail are the split of Y comb, polydactylism, syndactylism, rumplessness, winglessness, booting, nostril, crest and comb-lop. The inheritance of plumage color is described and it appears that in each color-race the plumage coloration is determined by a number of factors the varied combinations of which account for "reversion," "sporting" and various apparent abnormalities in the reproduction of coloration and patterns. A general discussion closes the book in which there are considered the relation of heredity to ontogeny, the significance of dominance and recessiveness, potency, reversion and the factor hypothesis, the limits of selection, non-inheritable characters and the role of hybridization in evolution. The volume is illustrated by twelve lithographic plates of plumage coloration.

123. Benedict, Francis G., and Thorne M. Carpenter. Respiration Calorimeters for Studying the Respiratory Exchange and Energy Transformations of Man. Octavo, VII+102 pages, 32 figures $0.75

In the two calorimeters, one of them for bedridden patients, the heat eliminated by man is measured by a current of cold water passing through a heat-absorbing system inside the chamber, the mass of water and the temperature rise being known. Direct measurement of the water vaporized gives the latent heat of water-vapor. By means of a system of thermal junctions, any slight temperature differences between the inner copper wall and an outer zinc wall are constantly noted. The temperature of the zinc wall is arbitrarily adjusted by heating and cooling to maintain it at the temperature of the copper wall, thus holding the calorimeter in an adiabatic condition. The chambers are large enough for a man to remain comfortably seated or lying for several hours, an electric light furnishes illumination, connection is made by call-bell and telephone with the outside, and a supply of air is continually circulated through the chamber, and thence through weighed vessels containing sulphuric acid and soda lime to absorb quantitatively water-vapor and carbon dioxide. The oxygen consumed is determined by admitting the gas from a weighed cylinder of highly-compressed pure oxygen. Analyses of the air residual in the chamber are made at the end of every period and corrections for barometric changes are applied. Electrical resistance thermometers are used to measure the calorimeter as well as body temperatures. A stethoscope and pneumograph permit the measurement of the pulse-rate and respiration-rate. A graphic record of the minor muscular movements is also furnished by the tracing of the pneumograph tambour. The apparatus has been most carefully checked as a calorimeter by the development of the heat from a known electrical current inside the chamber, and the accuracy of measurement of all four factors—carbon dioxide, water-vapor, oxygen absorption, and heat production—has been controlled by burning known weights of pure ethyl alcohol. The methods of calculation and the details of the routine of an experiment with men are included. The apparatus has proven highly successful for six to ten-hour experiments with men and women, and experiments may be subdivided to one-hour periods with accurate results.

136. Benedict, Francis G., and Elliott P. Joslin. Metabolism in Diabetes Mellitus. Octavo . . . . . In press

The metabolism of 13 diabetic patients has been studied by means of the respiration calorimeters of the Nutrition Laboratory. The investigation included 42 experiments lasting 2 to 6 hours, 14 hours after the last meal, together with 11 experiments following the ingestion of food. In these experiments the water elimination, carbon dioxide production, oxygen consumption, and heat elimination and production were determined and simultaneous determinations were likewise made of the body-temperature, pulse-rate, and respiration-rate. Besides experiments with the respiration calorimeters, 26 experiments were made with a respiration apparatus which permitted very exact determinations of carbon-dioxide production and oxygen absorption. The urine was collected and the nitrogen and sugar determined in all these experiments.

Complete details of the investigation are reported together with the clinical history of each case. A summary is given of the gaseous exchange and energy transformations in these experiments and the averages are compared with those for normal individuals in experiments with the same apparatus. The metabolism in diabetes of different degrees of severity is compared.

Some of the other topics discussed are the nitrogen excretion, the dextrose-nitrogen ratio and its significance, the respiratory quotient, which is compared with the dextrose-nitrogen ratio, the vaporization of water from the lungs and skin, and the influence of food on the nitrogen and sugar excretions, on the respiratory exchange, and on the total katabolism. The report concludes with a discussion of practical features in the treatment of diabetes on which light has been thrown by this investigation, including consideration of the quantities of food allowed diabetic patients, the restriction of diet, and the advisability of making the diabetic sugar-free. The value of the respiration calorimeter in studying Diabetes Mellitus is shown and a number of suggestions are made for further investigations on this subject.

NOTES ON ALTERNATE CURRENTS FOR STUDENTS. Illustrated. 96 pages, paper. Net, 50c.

OUTLINES OF ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING. With numerous Diagrams and Illustrations. Net, $6.00.

This work occupies an intermediate position between a text book and one of reference. Its scope is wide, and the treatment elementary, the object of the author being to provide a book to fill a well-marked need for something much wider in its purview than any existing text book. The result is a book in which the physical foundation of Electrical Engineering operations is clearly laid, together with the graphical and mathematical treatment, in an elementary style, of the theory necessary to such foundation. Reference is made to all the important applications, with indication of the technical difficulties and their solutions, the latest practice at time of going to press being drawn upon.

FURNIVALL, Dr. F. J., M.A., Ph.D., D.Litt.

SHAKESPEARE: HIS LIFE AND WORK.

The book is conveniently small—18mo—and contains upward of 270 pages. Bound in red cloth. Net, 35c. Leather, net, 65c.

The fact that our new publication, "Shakespeare: His Life and Work," bears the imprimatur of the world-renowned Shakespearean critic, Dr. F. J. Furnivall, M.A., Ph.D., D.Litt., to give him the degrees and honors his vast scholarship has earned for him, makes the work pre-eminent in the library of Shakespearean literature at the command of schools and colleges.

No better manual for Shakespearean classes or private reading can be found. In the brief period that the work has been before the public, it has gained signal approval—witness its adoption at Yale University and other colleges as a text book.

MORLEY, Prof. HENRY, LL.D.

A FIRST SKETCH OF ENGLISH LITERATURE. New and revised edition. Cloth, $2.25.

Ever since its first publication, Professor Morley's "A First Sketch of English Literature" has held premier place among works of its kind.

By the publication of revised editions it has been kept up to date, and in the present issue special attention has been given to the chapter dealing with Victorian literature. This has been thoroughly revised and expanded, and the work is brought down to the deaths of Swinburne and Meredith. It is a history—critical and biographical—of English literature and men of letters from the earliest time to the present day.

THE LIBRARY OF ENGLISH LITERATURE. New Edition, with Supplement to each Volume, bringing the work up to date. With 80 Full-page Plates, and numerous Illustrations in the Text. Five Volumes, cloth gilt, gilt edges, library style. Per Volume, net, $2.50. Sold in sets only.

Professor Morley's great aim in life was to popularize and bring home to the Anglo-Saxon race the full value of their rich literary heritage, and in none of the books from his busy pen written to this effect was he so successful as in "The Library of English Literature." Compiled as the work was during the years when his classes at University College were deservedly popular, the author was in touch with and able to appreciate the wants and difficulties of students and general readers, and to his success in grappling with these needs its pages yield ample testimony.

The work is laid out as follows: Vol. I, Shorter English Poems, from A. D. 284. Vol. II, Illustrations of English Religion, from A. D. 670. Vol. III. English Plays, from A. D. 1119. Vol. IV. Shorter Works in English Prose, from A. D. 1356. Vol. V. Longer Works in English Verse and Prose, from A. D. 874.

THE KING'S SHAKESPEARE.

Bound in full gilt leather back, emblematic full gilt rich green cloth side, gilt top, head and tail bands, marble pattern end papers. $1.50 net, per volume.

The new illustrated issue of "The King's Shakespeare" places within the reach of everyone a "superb edition," as it is called in a recent review. In projecting it the publishers have spared no trouble nor expense in their endeavor to make it unapproachable in value and quality. It is the last word in both, and lovers of Shakespeare will undoubtedly find in the 20 volumes of this edition a presentation of his life and works such as has never before been attained. The volumes are thoroughly authentic reproductions of the work; the explanations are scholarly throughout. There is a charming and distinctive frontispiece to each play, reproduced on a specially made plate paper. Maps and plans show the scene of action of each play. The Introduction, covering 270 pages, is a reprint of Dr. Furnivall's "Life and Work of Shakespeare." In addition each play is furnished with an exhaustive introduction, also by Dr. Furnivall, assisted by John Munro, and extensive and scholarly notes and glossaries.

SCLAVUS, WIESLAW.

TRAGIC RUSSIA. Translated by the Viscount de Busancy. With 16 Illustrations. Net, $2.50.

In addition to its intrinsic human interest, this book, by the author of "Napoleon's Love Story," has a profound political significance. As explained in a scathing Introduction, the work has been written from the point of view that such a history as that of Russia is an unanswerable argument against despotic power. The throes of the mighty struggle in Czardom are shown to be the aftermath of centuries of the vice and oppression of her rulers, such as it is difficult for the happy inhabitants of free countries to realize.

Hitherto the public has been made familiar with the intrigues of the Russian Court during the reign of Catherine only. This book reveals the hidden springs of the history of a great empire in the personal motives of powerful individuals, not only during Catherine's career, but from the time of Ivan down to the present day.

Many of the most famous people of his day were among the great novelist's intimate companions, and Mr. Shore's pages reveal to us the impression which Dickens's personality made upon his contemporaries.

Many of the numerous illustrations which add so much to the pleasure of the reader have never before been reproduced. The work in every way is a notable addition to Dickensiana.

The recipes are all very simple and strictly economical; they reveal the cachet and novelty of the French idea combined with the explicitness and practicability which alone can ensure the usefulness and popularity of a modern cookery-book. The various dishes are just "French" enough to be piquant and delightful, just familiar enough to be welcome and homely. From the first page to the last every single idea and suggestion can be heartily recommended.

The biggest value in the world in the Picture Book Line. In the matter of pictures the volume stands alone. An entirely new process has been used in the reproduction of the color drawings, with results that far surpass anything that has hitherto been done in this class of book, and as the color pictures number twice as many as are contained in any children's annual hitherto published, Cassell's Annual for Boys and Girls can well claim to be the biggest value in the world. It contains a great variety of stories by all the most popular contributors to juvenile literature. Among others John Comfort, Bessie Marchant, A. L. Haydon, Lilian Gask, Murray Fisher, Agnes Crogier Herbertson, Olaf Baker, Geraldine Mockler and John Lee.

They reveal London by flashes of lightning—its amusements, its sports, its follies, its politicians, its restaurants, its theatres, its music-halls, its actors and actresses, its dancers and comedians, its holiday crowds, its athletic sports, its contrasts of wealth and poverty, its parks and gardens, its gorgeous cloudscapes, its fogs, its thunderstorms—all the farce and comedy and tragedy of the greatest city on earth. The charm of the work will be especially felt by all who have visited London and who, through it, will revive old memories and delightful experiences.

Life's Contrasts. With Rembrandt Frontispiece. Net, $1.75.

Mr. Foster Fraser has quickly earned a high reputation by his practical and informative books of travel. In "Life's Contrasts" he breaks new ground. Having been immersed in journalism for over twenty years, he has seen every side of life, the ups and downs of Society, the humor and pathos of the people. Mr. Fraser, in this volume, places before his readers a brilliant panorama showing the lives of the wealthy and the poor in different parts of the world. His pages are more attractive and alluring than a novel, for they deal with actualities in the lively and vivid fashion which we have come to expect from his pen.

Pictures from The Balkans. With Colored Plate, Map and 40 Black and White Plates. Cloth, $2.00.

With the fires of insurrection constantly raging in the Balkans, no book more timely and more intensely interesting is obtainable. Mr. Foster Fraser made an extensive journey in the Balkans, visiting Servia, Bulgaria, crossing the Balkan Mountains into Turkey, pushing through the disturbed regions of Macedonia and into the very fastnesses of Albania. Full of romance, adventure, and political interest as the Balkans are, Mr. Fraser presents striking and graphic pictures, and brings a keen insight into the causes of the insurrections.

LLOYD, Arthur, M.A.

Every-day Japan. Written after twenty years' residence in the country. With an Introduction by Count Tadasu Hayashi, late Japanese Minister for Foreign Affairs and formerly Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary for Japan in London. With 8 Colored Plates and 96 Reproductions of Photographs. Net, $4.00.

"Every-day Japan" is not a tourist's notebook. It is the product of twenty-five years' residence and work in the country, and every chapter—save the one that deals with perhaps the most unpleasant feature of contemporary Japanese life—is written from first-hand knowledge and personal observation. Mr. Lloyd has been privileged to witness, at close quarters, the development of a nation from a state resembling mediæval feudalism to the commercial, scientific, and social life of the twentieth century.
Of this important book, Count Hayashi, in his valuable introduction, says: "I do not hesitate to say that the present work is one of the most useful contributions we have had to our stock of information. . . . It will be very helpful to those readers who are desirous of forming a sound and correct judgment on the problems that are arising and that may arise in the Far East."

WHAT THE NEWSPAPERS SAY:

Review of Reviews—"They are marvels of cheapness. Binding, Paper, Print, are excellent."

The Standard—"The paper, printing, and binding of each volume are excellently contrived and produced, and must inevitably give a book-lover genuine pleasure to examine and handle."

The Daily Chronicle—"A library of great books issued most handsomely, though at a small price."

The Times—"The last word in cheap reprints."

WHAT THE "PEOPLE'S LIBRARY" IS. Realizing that a great need exists for books by the world's best writers, issued at a price within reach of every class, and which are at the same time, neat, serviceable and handsome in appearance, Messrs. Cassell & Company have for a long time past devoted considerable attention to the production of what they desire shall be in every sense "The People's Library," worthy to adorn the bookshelves of any home. The Leather Edition is in specially-grained leather, the Fiction bound in a rich crimson, the more serious works in a beautiful olive green in the same order of classification as above. This Edition has also gilt top and silk bookmark.

THE TYPE is large size and a new face that has never before been used—the printing is beautifully clear, easy to read and its distinctness precludes the possibility of injury to the sight.

THE DECORATIVE DESIGNS. The border decoration, which has been specially designed for the title pages, is beautifully elaborated in the delicate outline manner of the decoration in Early Venetian printed books. The Editor's Introductory Notes are enclosed in a reversed design of the title page border. These pages give an artistic finish to the works.

THE PAPER is opaque, of good quality, and has been specially prepared for this series.

THE BOOKS are well bound and finished in every respect, and are sewn with thread. They will be found to be thoroughly serviceable. The number of pages in each book of course varies. Some of them run to 700 pages and upwards.

PUBLICATIONS OF THE CENTURY CO.

AUTUMN OF 1910

The Century Co.
UNION SQUARE, NEW YORK

NEW BOOKS

Only retail prices are given, and, unless otherwise specified, they are for copies in cloth. Books are sold to the trade on condition that prices be maintained in accordance with our Trade Circular of January 20th, 1907.

The double asterisk () precedes titles of net books. The dagger (†) precedes titles of fiction, not net.

*GROVER CLEVELAND: A RECORD OF FRIENDSHIP. By Richard Watson Gilder. Based upon the articles which attracted much attention when published serially in The Century Magazine in 1909. Twenty-eight full-page illustrations from photographs. Tall 12mo, 270 pages.

Price, $1.80 net, postage 12 cents.

This was Mr. Gilder's last prose work. He himself, with characteristic modesty, summarized it as merely the addition of "a few intimate touches to that portrait" to whose still imperfect rounding out high officials and leading men, sympathetic speakers and writers have contributed — "not thinking to complete it, but only to help loyally toward its completion."

Critics and readers, however, will rank this record high among notable biographies of great Americans, for its sane, rare, fine understanding and appreciation of a man once much misjudged, for its revelations, unfailing in their tact and good taste, of the real Cleveland both in public and private life, for many letters of unique value and interest, for the charm of the telling. There are vitally interesting pages picturing the days of storm and stress in the White House. There are beautiful glimpses of the ideal home life of the Cleveland family. There are many happy accounts of fishing days and merry holidaying together, with Joe Jefferson, his son, and other kindred spirits often as companions.

The whole is a worthy portrait — a finished and satisfying one, despite Mr. Gilder's modest disclaimer — of the great American who to-day "stands preëminent for unfeigned purity of intention, for singular frankness, for scrupulous and unusual honesty, for faithfulness to duty, for resolution, for courage, and, above all, for absorbing, dominating patriotism." As a dedication is printed Mr. Gilder's ode read at the Cleveland memorial meeting in Carnegie Hall, March 18, 1909.

*THE LURE OF THE ANTIQUE. By Walter A. Dyer. Eighty insets (159 illustrations) from photographs. Chapter headings and tail-pieces from drawings by Harry Fenn. 8vo, 488 pages. A companion volume to "The Quest of the Colonial."

Price, $2.40 net, postage 18 cents.

This is a book to make wide appeal, so universal nowadays is the interest in the household belongings of early Americans; and so entertainingly and helpfully is the subject presented. It is a book of ready reference for collectors of Old Furniture, China, Mirrors, Candlesticks, Silverware, Pewter, Glassware, Copper Utensils, Clocks, and other Household Furnishings of our American forefathers, and a handy guide for the determination of age, style, maker, genuineness, and value.

And all through it runs the fine spirit of one who feels "the charm that rests in a rare old piece of mahogany" and "how heart-warming and heart-softening a thing it is to associate, day by day, with the household belongings of a past generation, especially "before the Revolution and immediately after."

THE CREATORS. By May Sinclair, author of "The Divine Fire," "The Helpmate," etc. Eleven full-page illustrations by Arthur I. Keller. 12mo, 500 pages. Price, $1.30 net, postage 15 cents.

Here is the greatest novel May Sinclair has written since "The Divine Fire." It is a strong story of London life, literary people being among the chief characters. Miss Sinclair knows London thoroughly, and all of her characters have the brilliancy and fascination which genius gives its children; and May Sinclair's pen makes them live on the printed page,—Jane, Tanqueray, Prothero, Laura, Rose, Nicky, and all the rest of them.

Is it possible for the man or woman of genius to marry, and sacrifice neither family happiness nor success in creative work? This is the question these "creators" ask of themselves and each other often in their sparkling talk. This is the problem they try to work out in their lives. This is the keynote of this fascinating and brilliant picture of life and thought to-day in London and its environs.

THE HOLY LAND. Text by Robert Hichens, author of "Egypt and Its Monuments," etc. Eighteen full-page illustrations by Jules Guérin, reproduced in the colors of the original paintings. Forty full-page half-tones from photographs. A beautiful volume, uniform with "Egypt and Its Monuments." Royal octavo, 302 pages. Price, $6.00 net, carriage 27 cents.

Here is a volume to interest and impress not alone the traveler, but also every man and woman to whom—and there are many thousands—Palestine is indeed the "holy land." It pictures in sympathetic text and great beauty of coloring the life, the people, the country, and the atmosphere of Palestine. Author and artist, traveling separately, made the trip on horseback from Baalbec to Jerusalem, reaching Jerusalem for Holy Week, where "it seemed as if the religious life of the whole world centered in the court and Church of the Holy Sepulchre"; and there they witnessed the Holy Fire, one of the most marvelous sights of modern times, and the other strange, impressive Easter services.

The result of the trip is a work of unique interest and value, making an unusual appeal to many not ordinarily interested in art books or books of travel. And those who appreciate fine book-making will find this a volume to delight in. Mr. Guérin's paintings are reproduced most satisfactorily in the exquisite colorings of the originals; the photographs shown were chosen, by a high authority, for their special appropriateness; the text is in two printings on plate finish paper; and the pages are broad margined and deckle-edged. The green cloth binding is richly decorated in color and gold, with an adaptation of a Guérin drawing. The whole is a volume of rare and artistic beauty.

THE STORY OF SPANISH PAINTING. By Charles H. Caffin, author of "The Story of Dutch Painting," "How to Study Pictures," etc. Uniform with "The Story of Dutch Painting." Thirty-two half-tone reproductions of notable Spanish canvases. Square 8vo, 200 pages. Price, $1.20 net, postage 12 cents.

Mr. Caffin's earlier books, "How to Study Pictures" and "The Story of Dutch Painting" have shown that this writer possesses in an unusual degree the gift of imparting to others his understanding and appreciation of pictures. This new book has the same admirable qualities.

The story of Spanish painting begins to emerge into clearness toward the end of the fifteenth century. Starting at the moment when Italian art was entering upon the supreme achievements of the High Renaissance, it survived the latter's decay, reached its own independent climax in the seventeenth century, and received a supplementary chapter at the end of the eighteenth. This is the story which Mr. Caffin tells in his helpful, delightful way, weaving into it all necessary historical and biographical data, and presenting vivid pen pictures of Spain's representative painters, their attitude toward life and art, their struggles, their successes and failures.

His treatment is elementary enough to make the work interesting and valuable to the art lover anxious to know. The fine illustrations add to the volume's value and interest.

†THE GUILLOTINE CLUB. Four stories by Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, author of "Hugh Wynne, Free Quaker," "The Red City," etc. Fourteen full-page illustrations by Castaigne and Gruger. 12mo, 285 pages. Price, $1.50.

There is more than a touch of mystery in each of these stories, which are as different as four stories could possibly be.

The characters of "A Diplomatic Adventure" reappear in "The Guillotine Club," including that delightful scamp Alphonse. "The Guillotine Club," of course, is a most unusual and surprising organization, and acquaintance with it involves all concerned in complications both serious and amusing, of which Dr. Mitchell's telling makes the most. The puzzle of "The Fourteenth Guest" is left unsolved at the end; and there is no explanation of the queer experiences in the "House Beyond Prettymarsh." But "The Mind-reader" handles a miserly character and a curious murder and an intensely interesting tracking down of the criminals, deftly, to an unexpected and very satisfactory climax, which clears up everything. Worth-while and unusual stories, told with the skill of a master.

*THE SONG OF THE STONE WALL. By Helen Keller. Eight full-page reproductions of photographs of the author and the stone wall. Each page decorated with a border. Tall octavo, 100 pages. Price, $1.20 net, postage 8 cents.

A remarkable literary work by the wonderful deaf and blind girl whose "The World I Live In" astonished every one by its beauty of imagery and form. To Helen Keller "The Song of the Stone Wall," as she walks beside it in the beauty of the New England open,

"Is of the men who built the walls,
"And of the God who made the stones and the workers."

And what she reads she has set down in blank verse, of such insight as comes only to the chosen few of all ages, of lofty thought and rare imagery, of exquisite beauty of feeling and expression.

The book is beautifully made, with eight full-page pictures of the author and her comrade the wall — pictures conveying the joy of the open in most unusual degree.

This is distinctly a gift-book, and a gift-book of unusual daintiness and taste in the making. The poem, Squire Hawkins's story of sweet Patience and brave John, is a favorite with all admirers of Riley's verse; and this setting is all that could be desired by any romance lover.

The illustrations are in John Wolcott Adams's happiest vein; and their reproduction and all the details of the making of the book are beautifully done.

*SONNY'S FATHER. By Ruth McEnery Stuart, author of "Sonny, A Christmas Guest," "Napoleon Jackson," etc. Frontispiece by Potthast. 16mo, 300 pages. Price, $1.00 net, postage, 8 cents.

The sweetness, the mellow humor, the deep tenderness for all children, with love of the tenderest for the children of one's own household, which have made "Sonny" so dear to many thousands of readers, are in "Sonny's Father" in even richer measure than in the earlier book. The chapters are all monologues by Sonny's father, the good old doctor friend of the family a silent and sympathetic listener. "Sonny" has come to the estate of a successful and famous writer; and he and Mary Elizabeth are very happy in their rapidly increasing family. "Sonny's Father" tells of their journeyings to New York and Atlantic City, of the changes in ways of living, of wealth and riches, of the modern woman and his views of her; but, most, of the children around him, of the child heart, of the little child's claim to love and honor. There is much of Mrs. Stuart's inimitable humor in these sketches; and the chapters are exquisite pictures of a mellow old age in complete and ideally happy sympathy with the world's young life.

SEVEN GREAT STATESMEN. By the Hon. Andrew D. White, diplomat, educator, historian. Royal octavo, 552 pages.

Price, $2.50 net, postage 20 cents.

A scholarly volume of essays, historical, biographical, critical, constructive; studies of seven great men who gave their lives to the warfare of Humanity for Right Reason, in Italy, France, and Germany—Sarpi, Grotius, Thomasius, Turgot, Stein, Cavour, and Bismarck. The lives of all these men were full of action and marked by tragedy. They lived in stirring times. They made history. And Andrew D. White writes of these scholars and statesmen and their work with the breadth of knowledge and the illuminating touch of one who is himself a scholar, a statesman, and a historian. It is a book of solid and enduring worth; abounding in vitality and interest.

NAPOLEON BONAPARTE: A HISTORY. A New Library Edition from new plates. By William Milligan Sloane, Ph.D., L.H.D., Professor of History in Columbia University. Thirty-two illustrations from rare prints and authentic portraits, all reproductions of rare and valuable paintings or prints, showing Napoleon or members of his family. Seventeen maps. Four octavo volumes, 500 pages each. Price, $10.00 net, carriage extra.

Professor Sloane's great life of Napoleon, published first as a serial in The Century Magazine, and later in four large, lavishly illustrated volumes, has taken its place as the standard life of the great Corsican. It is a thorough biography, exhibiting all the characteristics of Napoleon, taking full account of his early environment, and revealing for the first time the political influences which had much to do with the formation of his character.

In preparing his history, Professor Sloane had access to papers which had never before been fully studied. He traveled over Europe and made himself thoroughly familiar with the field of the Emperor's victories and defeats. His researches have extended over many years, and since the book was originally published, fourteen years ago, Professor Sloane has continued to collect material and to weigh carefully all contributions which have been made to Napoleonic literature. The original edition is now out of print.

The great work as now issued contains more than ten per cent. of entirely new matter. As originally issued it received the highest praise from critics the world over—as now put forth it may be considered the definitive life of Napoleon.

THE DOCTOR'S LASS. By Edward C. Booth, author of "The Post Girl." Frontispiece in color by Denman Fink. 12mo, 370 pages.

Price, $1.30 net, postage 12 cents.

Jane, "the doctor's lass," is own sister to Pam, "the post-girl," whom readers and critics declared "more bewitching than Barrie's Babbie." Jane's mother, dying, begs the Yorkshire country doctor, whose young manhood she has wrecked, to take her little daughter for his ward. Unwillingly he does so. Then the girl's fragrant sweetness and charm win all his heart, and the hearts of many lovers.

While the girl and the doctor dominate every page and the reader's interest, the book is peopled with a host of quaint characters, who, as in "The Post Girl," supply the comedy element for a love story of unusual sweetness and power.

MOLLY MAKE-BELIEVE. By Eleanor Hallowell Abbott. Fourteen full-page pictures by Walter Tittle. 16mo, 211 pages. Price, $1.00 net, postage 8 cents.

Not a bit like ordinary love stories, any more than Molly is like ordinary girls—and Molly is the daintiest wisp of a sprite put into a book in many a day. She writes love letters to order—just a cool business arrangement at first—when Carl Stanton is miserably ill with rheumatism, and Cornelia, his fiancée, has indifferently gone South. Cornelia, however, for all her beauty, does n't know how to write love letters; Molly does—to perfection. How well she does, makes the story—quite the daintiest, cleverest, most original tale of many a year.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN AND OTHER ADDRESSES. By Joseph H. Choate. Frontispiece portrait of the author. Octavo, 300 pages.
Price, $2.00 net, postage 14 cents.

They are essays of sound and inspiring appreciation, of wide application and sympathy, of intense interest and permanent value.

HUNTING WITH THE ESKIMOS. The Unique Record of a Sportsman's Year Among the Northernmost Tribe — the Big Game Hunting, the Native Life, and the Battle for Existence Through the Long Arctic Night. By Harry Whitney. Sixty-four full-page illustrations from photographs and reproductions of interesting native Eskimo sketches. Octavo, 453 pages. Price, $3.50 net, carriage extra.

This book is not only a record of a year's hunting within the arctic circle — a record that will prove fascinating to sportsmen all over the world — but also it gives us perhaps the best and most intimate picture of Eskimo life that has ever been presented. Mr. Whitney adopted not only the clothes but the daily life of the Eskimos among whom he lived through the short arctic summer and the long arctic night.

There is no attempt at fine writing or graphic description, yet in a very straightforward and modest way the author has chronicled his unique experiences, and one is constantly thrilled with the dangers, as well as the beauties, of this wonderful region around the Pole. In short, it is a remarkable picture of a life that is almost unknown to us, — of which the more scientific explorers have given us glimpses, but never in such detail or so faithfully as in Mr. Whitney's record. Among the big game that he hunted were the musk-ox, seal, walrus, and narwhal; besides, he shot many ducks and arctic hares.

This book is, first of all, a fascinating record of a most adventurous year, and, secondly, it is an important contribution to travel literature.

LIMITED EDITION, of 150 copies, each signed by the author, with four pictures in full color by F. W. Stokes, eight photogravure illustrations, and fifty-six half-tones. Royal octavo, 450 pages. Printed on semi-plate, deckle-edged paper. Price, $15.00 net, carriage extra.

†HAPPY ISLAND. A New "Uncle William" Book, by Jennette Lee. Frontispiece in color by Schoonover. 16mo, 330 pages. Price, $1.00.

A happy story of happy folks on a real island. It is all quaintly, sympathetically, deliciously told: the slow building of Bodet's house, Celia's coming to the island, the call of the mackerel; George's clumsy, unconventional wooing; Celia's slow surrender; the coming home of Sergia and her little one. Through every page moves Uncle William, with his big smile and his childlike gladness in the simple things of every day. All the qualities which made Mrs. Lee's earlier book so fine a success, in the best meaning of the word, are strongly marked in this new narrative.

THE BOYS' BOOK OF MODEL AËROPLANES. By Francis Arnold Collins. Many pictures from photographs. 12mo, 300 pages.
Price, $1.20 net, postage extra.

There are thousands of boys in this country and abroad who will be keenly interested in this book. The Junior Aëro Club numbers 200 members in New York alone, and more than 1000 members throughout the country; the Junior Aëronautic Society has almost as large a membership; and plans are under way for a grand international meet contest between the boy aviators of America and Great Britain.

This book has been written for the rapidly increasing army of bright American lads, who are not only interested in airships and aëronautics but are really doing their share in the development of the sport. It tells all about how to make aëroplane models and how to fly them, very simply and helpfully, with plenty of pictures to illuminate the text. A fascinating book for boys of all ages.

MAGICIANS' TRICKS. By Henry Hatton and Adrian Plate, well-known magicians. Over 250 illustrations. 12mo, 350 pages.
Price, $1.60 net, postage 12 cents.

The veriest amateur can learn from this book how to perform successfully tricks without number, tricks with cards, tricks with handkerchiefs, tricks with coins, paper tearing, etc. The instructions are clear, simple, and definite; and leave nothing to chance or guesswork. The would-be magician is told how to provide his clothes with the necessary secret pockets, how to manage the "servante," the use of the wand, and, in fullest detail, the equipment for every trick and just how the finished result is to be obtained. The illustrations make the clear, helpful text clearer and more helpful.

Young folks—and folks not so young—can have lots of fun with this book which is quite the best printed on the subject.

THE WALTER CAMP BOOK OF FOOT-BALL. The first of a series of books on American sports to be edited by Walter Camp, America's veteran authority. Profusely illustrated. Octavo, 350 pages.
Price, probably $2.00 net, carriage extra.

Mr. Walter Camp's series of articles on American sports in The Century Magazine is easily the most important discussion yet published on the development of amateur athletics in America. No American living knows better than Mr. Camp the inside history and development of college and amateur athletics in America, foot-ball especially, and the spirit and influence of his writings are always wholesome and inspiring.

The volume covers fully and entertainingly the history of foot-ball, the development of the American game, the new foot-ball, personality in foot-ball, general strategy; the field, the costumes and training; the development and play of the different positions; the coach, his development, use, and resourcefulness; an all-time, all-America team. It is an eminently readable book, rich in anecdote and reminiscence, and the most important and valuable contribution to the playing of the game ever published.

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER. A Book for Girls. By Mrs. Burton Chance. 16mo, 250 pages.

*THE REFUGEE. By Captain Charles Gilson. Twenty-four full-page pictures by Arthur Becher. 12mo, 407 pages. Price, $1.25 net, postage 12 cents.

This is a story brim full of adventure of the good old-fashioned kind, the scenes set near the east coast of England during the French Revolution. The Vicomte des Ormeaux is the chief character, a polished, fascinating refugee and rascal, with no care for anything in the world but himself and his own ends; and to help him carry out his plots he employs as his aids the villains Gipsy Yates and Jerry Abershaw, the kind of adventurers who hold up the stage on the king's highway and scruple not at all to shoot the man who resists. Jerry, at least, is a real historical personage, whose fame has come down as a notable highwayman who terrorized certain counties of England for several years and finally paid the penalty of his misdeeds.

How the Viscount came to England and there betrayed the hospitality of Nether Hall, even to the carrying off of bonny Cicely Packe by force; how he, too, finally, paid the penalty of his life of violence, how Roland and Cicely were happily wed, the boyhood of the great John Constable, these and many other matters of much interest are told in a tale that thrills to the very end.

*THE WORKER AND THE STATE. A Problem in Education for Industrial Workers. By Arthur D. Dean, Chief of Trades Schools, New York State Education Department. 12mo. Price, $1.20 net, postage extra.

This is an important book on a vital subject, which should command the attention of all thoughtful and public-minded citizens. The author makes a plea—and a strong one—for what he would call "the democratization of education." He points out that the weakest spot in our educational system to-day is that the great army of boys and girls, destined to earn their living with their hands, waste from four to six years between the time they finish the common school course and the time when they are old enough to secure places in factories, etc. The majority drift into jobs where unskilled labor is accepted, and few of them, probably, rise above this class.

Vocational training, which is so powerful a factor in Germany's industrial development, is hardly more than in the experimental stage with us; but a careful reading of Mr. Dean's book is likely to leave the reader with the impression that the proper working out of a national system of industrial education, more or less under federal control, is the only thing which will insure economic, industrial, and social stability in this country. The general subject is treated both historically and philosophically; and the work is not merely a book of criticism and suggestion, it is a scheme of education thoroughly worked out.

BOOKS FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

†KINGSFORD, QUARTER. By Ralph Henry Barbour, author of "The Crimson Sweater," "Captain Chub," etc. Fourteen full-page illustrations by Relyea. 12mo, 326 pages. Price, $1.50.

Ralph Henry Barbour's books sell and sell; there is no more popular writer for young people to-day. Always, wholesomeness is the keynote of his stories; and work and play and innocent fun are mixed in liberal proportions.

This his latest story introduces an entirely new set of characters—jolly good fellows to know—Evan Kingsford, Rob Langton, Jelly, Malcolm Warne. Of course, there are some chaps not so well worth knowing—Frank Hopkins, bully, for one—but they really count for little, after all. The boys at Riverport have all kinds of good times; and foot-ball plays a large part in their lives and thoughts. There is some study, plenty of fun, and lots of light-hearted talk; but foot-ball practice, foot-ball business, and foot-ball games are the important things at Riverport; and Mr. Barbour tells all about them most entertainingly. "Kingsford, Quarter" is sure to be one of this popular author's most popular books.

†THE LEAGUE OF THE SIGNET RING. A sequel to "The Lass of the Silver Sword," by Mary Constance DuBois. Thirteen full-page illustrations by Relyea. 12mo, 391 pages. Price, $1.50.

Every girl and boy who read "The Lass of the Silver Sword" will want to read "The League of the Signet Ring." Sunshine and shadow, incident and adventure follow thick and fast, from the happy house party at Wyndgarth in the beginning of the story to the very happy and satisfactory ending in the lovely country home where the story opens.

Much of the fun and adventure of the book passes in the Adirondacks; and the telling is fresh and delightful. And few books teach sweeter, saner lessons of love and loyalty than this.

†BETTY'S HAPPY YEAR. A companion volume to "The Story of Betty," by Carolyn Wells. Twenty-two charming pictures by Reginald Birch. 12mo, 325 pages. Price, $1.50.

A wholesome, happy story of the sunshine bonny Irish Betty makes for those around her. Betty has been a homeless drudge, then, unexpectedly come a fortune and the finding of her mother; and Betty enjoys her happiness to the uttermost. "The Story of Betty" tells of this finding. This new book tells of the good times crowded into the first year of her new life, Thanksgiving, Christmas, Valentine's Day, birthdays and holidays in country and city.

It is a jolly book for both girls and boys; and parents will like its wholesome tone.

†THE YOUNG RAILROADERS. Unusual stories of ingenuity and adventure, by F. Lovell Coombs. Twenty-six full-page illustrations by F. B. Masters. 12mo, 380 pages. Price, $1.50.

Alex Ward and Jack Orr, chums, and clever telegraph operators in spite of their youth, are given responsible work in various offices of a Western railroad. They are plucky, quick-witted, manly, modest boys, whose nimble brains and cool courage stand them in good stead in many a tight place.

When train-wreckers plan to derail the train carrying a number of strike-breakers, young Alex saves the day by flashing a message in the telegraphic code by means of a lantern hung to a semaphore arm. He saves another train from wreck by improvising a battery from an old piece of zinc and the copper bottom of a wash boiler. Jack sends an important news dispatch, when the regular wires are cut, by using a wire fence to bridge the break.

They have other adventures and experiences of the really worth-the-telling kind; and through everything they are the kind of young Americans it is good to read about. Boys will be fascinated by the clear, vivid, direct telling; and parents will approve the lessons of manliness and modest courage the story teaches.

†THE BROWNIES' LATEST ADVENTURES. By Palmer Cox, author of "The Brownies: Their Book," and eight other Brownie books. Pictures on every page. Board covers in color. Quarto, 144 pages. Uniform with the original volumes. Price, $1.50.

Palmer Cox's Brownie books are unique. His clever pen, his gift at jingle-turning seem to gain in cleverness and wit with every year; and youngsters of all ages will vote this the jolliest Brownie book yet. There are all the old favorites in the new book, and some new friends; and they help a hospital, and harvest ice, and sow seeds in most novel fashion, and put out a fire, and play many other Brownie pranks. Pictures and verse are done as only Palmer Cox knows how.

†THE LAKERIM CRUISE. By Rupert Hughes, author of "The Lakerim Athletic Club," "The Dozen from Lakerim," etc. Twelve full-page illustrations by Relyea. 12mo, 248 pages. Price, $1.50.

The Lakerim Athletic Club was made up of "twelve of the boyishest boys" who ever played foot-ball and base-ball and tennis and golf, or skated and coasted and canoed, or enjoyed every other possible kind of out-door fun.

This is the story of one vacation when one of "the dozen" ran away from home and the other eleven went after him in their war-canoe. They forgot to telegraph home that the wanderer was found — they were too busy playing ball and engaging in water contests with new friends and rivals. But they had the best time twelve boys ever had; and Rupert Hughes's telling is very jolly.

Grown-ups will chuckle over this book. Youngsters will love its funny pictures, merry nonsense, and its many unique features. The creator says it was "made to entertain good little boys and girls by taking them on a journey to many countries," the United States, Canada, Mexico, England, and many places on the continent.

Never, surely, was a journey so full of delicious nonsense. It is a really original book; and the pictures are quite inimitable.

†PUEBLO INDIAN FOLK-LORE STORIES. By Charles F. Lummis. A new edition of the book (for some time out of print) formerly issued under the title, "The Man Who Married the Moon." Illustrated by George Wharton Edwards. 12mo, 257 pages. Price, $1.50.

Both young and old will enjoy this curious collection of Indian folk-lore stories, the original compilation enriched in this new edition by an entirely new story, "P'a-i'-shia," "a tale of the old." The story is shown first in the original Indian of the telling (in Teewhan dialect), with an interlined translation in which each Indian word has written under it the English word, or words, for which it stands. Such an absolutely literal translation, while interesting, is almost unintelligible. There follows, therefore, a free and readable rendering of this quaint Pueblo tale.

THE FRONTIER BOYS

The new book for 1910

Frontier Boys in the Saddle

By Capt. Wyn Roosevelt

This noted scout and author, known to every plains man, has lived a life of stirring adventure. In boyhood, he traveled the overland route to the West—a trip of hardships and trials that would have daunted a heart less brave. His life has been spent in the companionship of the typically brave adventures, gold seekers, cowboys and ranchmen of our great West. He writes in a way sure to win the heart of every boy.

This series tells the adventures of Jim, Jo, and Tom Darlington, first in their camp wagon as they follow the trail to the great West in the early days. They are real American boys, resourceful, humorous, and—but you must meet them. You will find them interesting company. They meet with thrilling adventures and encounters, stirring incidents are the rule, not exception.

THE COMRADES

By RALPH VICTOR

For 1910 we announce

Comrades on River and Lake

A story where mystery abounds and where the Comrades play the part of amateur sleuths.

Ralph Victor is probably the best equipped writer of up-to-date boys' stories of the present day. He has traveled or lived in every land, has shot big game with Sears in India, has voyaged with Jack London, and was a war correspondent in Natal and Japan. The lure of life in the open has always been his, and his experiences have been thrilling and many.

The author gets full opportunity to exhibit his unusual talent for the description of American field sports. These books will make a lasting impression, and we will not detract from the readers interest by even a suggestion of the unexpected happenings. The mystery which involves the Comrades and Tom particularly is a not unworthy feature.

Joel, a Boy of Galilee

This book is

The "Ben Hur" of Childhood

and should be in the library of every home where there are children

By ANNIE FELLOWS JOHNSTON

Author of

LITTLE COLONEL SERIES

Cloth. 12*mo.* Fully illustrated.

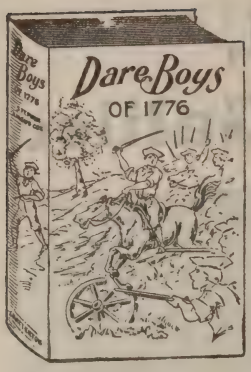
Boxed Price, $1.00

The author has presented to children through "Joel" as accurate a picture of the times of Christ as has been given to older readers by General Lew Wallace in his celebrated work. While the story is that of an ordinary boy, living among shepherds and fishermen, it touches at every point the Gospel narrative, making Joel, in a natural and interesting way, a witness to the miracles, the death and the resurrection of the Nazarene.



THE DARE BOYS OF 1776

By STEPHEN ANGUS COX

The latest volume

The Dare Boys and the "Swamp Fox"

Campaigning with Morgan is a tale which will thrill and entertain every boy. The story deals with facts of history not generally known.

The author of the Dare Boys of 1776 is specially equipped through long study and research to write upon the life and adventures of these two daring sons of the revolutionary period. Every item of historical reference is absolutely correct. The trials and inherent bravery of the sturdy warriers of this epoch are always subjects worth while, but here the dash and bravery of the two Dare boys adds immeasurably to the interest.

Dick Dare and his younger brother Tom are two typical youths of the hardy, indomitably brave company which fought for the liberty this great nation now enjoys. Their personal experiences were many and of a character to try their metal That they were not found wanting the stories evidence. There is mystery, spy-work, night adventures and fighting in the open. The interest never flags.

BOOKS BY DWIGHT TILTON

MISS PETTICOATS

READ AND LIKED EVERYWHERE

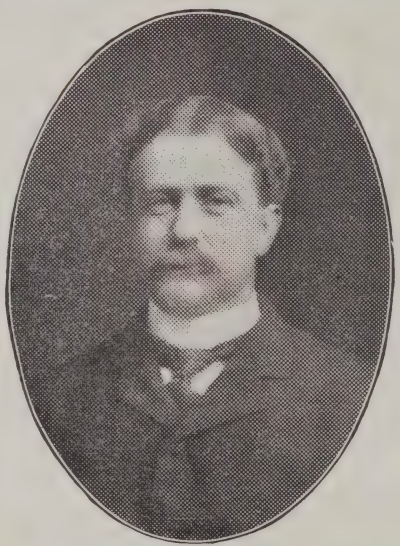
A story of deep human interest, with a captivating love theme treated uniquely. A heroine, who is a charming contradiction of tenderness and pride, who hates and loves with equal intensity, who early discovers the true sham of so-called "society," who finds at last the best that life has to give. A result that goes straight to the heart without preaching, that reaches the very soul of a grave social fault, that enforces, through a tense and brilliant story the eternal truth, "There is no Sex in Sin."

Illustrations in Color, $1.50

ON SATAN'S MOUNT

A STORY OF FUTURE POSSIBILITIES

Dwight Tilton has looked far enough into the future to assume the creation of a cabinet officer known as the Secretary of Industry. By a peculiar chain of circumstances he suddenly finds himself President pro tem. Washington is under martial law. A mob runs wild through the streets, burning and pillaging. The cry is, "Down with the plutocrats." The hero of the novel is the people's representative in the cabinet; he is the Secretary of Industry and the friend of labor. The reins of government are completely in his hands; a word from him and he may become Dictator—it is the supreme temptation.



DWIGHT TILTON

In the present political situation, this novel is both timely and interesting.

MY LADY LAUGHTER

Including among its characters George Washington, John Hancock, Samuel Adams, Joseph Warren, Paul Revere and many others who fought to save Boston in 1775. Ten Illustrations in Color, $1.50

MEYER & SON

The book's chief claim to distinction lies not alone in the fact that it lifts to their proper plane some of the finest specimens of an ancient race, but in its dramatic contrasts,—its masterful portrayal on the one hand of prejudice, duplicity and greed, and on the other love strong as death and all the noblest passions of the soul.

Illustrated, Cloth, $1.50

FLORENCE LAND MAY

THE BROKEN WHEEL

By FLORENCE LAND MAY

One of the best political stories ever written about America. San Francisco after the earth-quake is the scene and the prosecution by Francis Heney of "Abe Ruef" and his nest of grafters is the theme of this powerful and absorbing novel. It is a wonder that no writer has thought to use this situation before in a novel, and perhaps a greater one that it is so ably done now by a young woman. At any rate this story, with its political intrigues and its powerful love story, and with its final triumph of right over wrong and of love over hate, is sure to be widely read and discussed.

THE HEART OF THE PEOPLE

By J. R. ABARBANELL

"The London Chronicle" says of this book: "The work is a graphic description of American life both high and low. The characters are capitally drawn; the incidents are most stirring, often heart-rending; and the language is replete with noble thoughts. The reader's interest never flags. The author makes war upon the Trusts, advocates Trade Unionism, ridicules the longing of American millionairesses to marry French titled personages, and condemns the outrageous but luxurious living of the rich Americans.

"It is evident that Mr. Barrows knows the wild life of the New Mexico and Arizona cattle ranges. In this book he deals with the smoldering feuds between the big cattlemen and the 'rustlers' in the days of lynch law." — Chicago Record-Herald.

SOCIAL JUSTICE.

By Percy Vivian Jones.

Crown, 325 pp., price postpaid $1.62.

This book is different from all other works pertaining to social conditions. New fundamental principles are propounded and proved to be the proper basis for the social fabric.

We have been taught that mankind is a mixture of good and bad, and that only by cultivating the good can the world progress. Jones demonstrates that we are necessarily human, being governed under all circumstances by our understanding of our self-interest, regardless (apart from self-interest) of the consequences of our conduct, and that whenever our conduct is justly censurable, the cause is not any defect of human nature, but solely a misunderstanding of our true self-interest. And hence is reached the inevitable conclusion that the only means by which right conduct may be induced is to so arrange social matters as to make it to the evident self-interest of all normal persons to act in accordance with the moral law.

The social fabric requires to be woven anew with justice as the warp and self-interest as the woof.

As we read, theories develop into facts, and every man who will study "Social Justice" will find that it points the way to his personal advancement as well as to the escape of the whole race from the industrial slavery which now enchains the masses.

Jones contradicts all other sociologists. Where all others have failed to convince he convinces. This is the book that has been looked for by the political dreamers of all ages. It will satisfy Democrats, Republicans, Socialists, Populists, Prohibitionists, Anarchists—all, for it is founded on truth, and truth can never die.

THE QUAKER BOY. By Robert Barclay Dillingham.

12*mo*, 260 pp., price postpaid $1.62.

Dr. Weir Mitchell in "Hugh Wynne" has narrated the events which led a young Quaker in Revoluntionary times to take part in the war of independence. The present story is similar in narrating the transformation of a Quaker boy into a soldier of the Civil War, but it is quite different in its description of life among the Society of Friends. It is evidently written by one "to the manner born." There is in it little sternness or harsh repression of individual convictions, but if anything, too much liberty, and on one question at least (that of negro slavery), an inspiration such as Whittier might have given to one who read his "Voices of Freedom" in early Abolition days. There is the child's way of looking at things: the glory of the first trousers; the description of Diana the washerwoman, a sable goddess who differed from the divine huntress in many ways.

During his college days the boy developed into something of a scamp. Then, as is inevitable, the threads of a love story become intertwined with his escapades. Finally, the scenes of army life, the first battle, and the culmination of the war in the fateful struggle of Gettysburg are described. There is a full account of the part taken by the hero in that great battle and the climax of the story—well—that ought not to be told to those who propose to read the book.

LOGIC AND IMAGINATION IN THE PERCEPTION OF TRUTH.
By J. Rush Stoner, M.A.

12*mo*, 300 pp., price postpaid $1.62.

This book is written with the idea of reviewing some scientific and philosophic principles within the ordinary modes of research and the categories of the plain man's way of thinking. There has been a humble attempt at analyzing the forms of knowledge and belief, but this does not claim more than to have touched upon that vast realm of the Reason that makes possible the universal synthesizing activity of the Mind's Life in the World of Experience.

The plan has been to take note of some of the scientific investigators and philosophers whose works have been epoch-making influences in the past; and probably the nearest approach of physical science is a sketch of the principle of motion that represents double parallelism, "X" radiation, balance and equilibrium of gravitating centers, equality and inequality in the distribution of energy, the corresponding curves described by the different centers in motion, and the influence of the mechanical and dynamical; since this seems to be suggestive of the relation of mechanism and teleology.

THE CHILD IN OUR MIDST. By Emily Dudley Wright.

12*mo*, 96 pp., price postpaid 55*c.*

The child in our midst is the definition of heaven; that is, of course, the children in the true sense of the term; child-condition, child period, childlike innocence, simplicity, purity, unadulterated evidence of truth and truth relations—faith, freedom, joy, pure love—all this expresses the child—is child.

IT. By Elizabeth Nichols Watrous.

12*mo*, 340 pp., price postpaid $1.62.

The title alone is one to attract attention, even if there were not a splendid theme back of it. Jean, the daughter of a primitive family in the backwoods of the Adirondack mountains, has aspirations far beyond her surroundings. Six weeks of schooling she has a year and four miles a day to walk to the school house.

As she grew older and had opportunity to see a few magazines and papers (used as wrapping paper from the mine store) she had many visions of the world outside her narrow horizon, of the beautiful women, handsome men, fine houses, parks and buildings.

But now read the story yourself to see Jean Cummings' endeavor to be as are other girls in the outside world.

EVA'S CHOICE AND OTHER POEMS. By Leda Gano Browne.

12*mo*, 64 pp., price postpaid 65*c.*

We quote a verse of this charming poem:

Tender and true are memories that blend
In later years with thought of school-day friends.
The mists of passing years that intervene
Cannot obscure those early friends and scenes;
In restful, dreamy hours they yet are here,
The same familiar voices still we hear.

The book closes with about a dozen short poems.

HAWAIIAN MEMORIES. By Blanche Howard Wenner.

12*mo*, 32 pp., price postpaid 50*c.*

Beautiful verses descriptive of the island of Hawaii. The book consists of twenty short poems; from one of the best we quote here:

There her freshest smile she brings;
There her rarest song she sings;
Pouring there her sweetest balms
To filter through the long-leaved palms.
Passes sadly on her way—
Looking backwards all the day.

AXEL. By Magnus Bernhard.

12*mo*, 37 pp., price postpaid 55*c.*

This poem is adapted from the Swedish of Bishop Tegnér, and is a charming but sad love story. One of the many good passages is as follows:

"Farewell, yon dear ancestral tower!
I may at some future hour
Return to you. Within your dim
Old halls I must no longer hover.
Take me, O night! beneath your cover,
And bring me to my love—to him!"

HIS STRUGGLE MAGNIFICENT. By William Sidney Bond.

12*mo*, 304 pp., price postpaid $1.35.

Starting out in the world his life wrecked and embittered, the hero of the tale, Nathaniel Fitzgerald, battles against great odds in the old city of New Orleans. A small fortune finally acquired, is lost through the underhand means that are used by a rich, powerful clique to cause his downfall. By active work he later acquires a fortune; then after having reached the very top of the social and financial ladder, suddenly finds all swept aside in a moment, and he stands apparently bankrupt and disgraced before the world. Then looms up the greatness of the man, the greatness of a love deep down within him that he bore for a young woman; the indomitable spirit of fight in him that could not be killed. For the denouement, read the book.

The suggestions and teachings given are suitable for the use of parents and other teachers of children.

GOD, MAN AND DESTINY. By Addison Brainard.

12*mo*, 130 pp., price postpaid $1.08.

This is a book written with a religious purpose—to show the relation between God and man by the destiny of the latter according to his course in life, according as he does his duty to God as it is commanded and he is able to see it. The writer has evidently thought very deeply on his subject and his words burn with inspirational fire.

THE FORSAKEN. By Ivan Trepoff.

12*mo, frontispiece,* 180 pp., price postpaid $1.10.

In the guise of a strongly emotional novel, this book is really a sane argument for the morality of divorce. Opposition to divorce originates in a perverted mental attitude which thinks lightly of human happiness. While that view of life is fast dying out, some deductions from it still thrive, and the theory that unhappy men and women should continue bound to each other because they happen to have married is one of these.

This book is written for people who can bear to read the truth, no matter how hard it cuts, nor how brutally frank is its presentation. Those who cry out about the divorce evil and who shout for reform of divorce laws—meaning laws to prevent and reduce divorces—need to be told of the causes that make divorces not only right, but really obligatory upon occasions.

WHEN FOLKS WAS FOLKS. By Elizabeth L. Blunt.

12*mo,* 180 pp., price postpaid $1.62.

This is one of those country stories, with scenes laid in one of those old-fashioned New England towns that used to exist. The writer is evidently telling facts of her own knowledge and early life history; nobody could possibly invent those people, and their unique sayings and doings. The heroine and Aunt Betsy are the two most important characters, and to read about them is to love them.

DEMOCRACY. By Anna G. Flack.

12*mo,* 64 pp., price postpaid 55*c.*

This book is an interpretation of a number of the present phases of social evolution according to some of the principles and analogies of sociology. It suggests: The future nature of patriotism, statesmanship, etc., preventive remedies in general, the placing of responsibility in bank supervision, the necessity for governmental supervision of industry in general.

BALLADS OF THE WESTERN MINES. By Anthony Fitch.

12*mo, illustrated,* 72 pp., price postpaid 80*c.*

One would fancy that the author of these poems had actually been a miner among the scenes so well described. The peculiar flavor of the "Wild West" he has, without a doubt, succeeded in transferring to his pages in many a stirring verse.

SOMETHING ABOUT SINGLEFOOT. By John Hicks, LL.D.

12*mo.*, 440 pp., price postpaid $1.62.

"A realistic story, which aims to recount the romance of pioneer and later life in the Northwest. Its scene is laid in Oshkosh, and its hero, John Singlefoot, is one of the early dwellers therein. The tale is especially concerned with his life and his various adventures, financial and matrimonial, through a period of some fifty years down to the present time."—Current Literature.

"A new novel of Wisconsin, by the author of 'The Man from Oshkosh,' written around the life of a young grocer's clerk who becomes a wealthy manufacturer. Through his life he carries the dream face of a girl unknown to him. In middle life, suddenly unnerved by an awful tragedy, her face in a chance photograph saves him from suicide. That his resulting bizarre adventures culminate in another tragedy does not detract from the interest of the story."—Monthly Book Review.

WHY DR. DOBSON BECAME A QUACK. By P. J. Noyes.

12*mo,* 280 pp., price postpaid $1.62.

This is a somewhat unusual story that tells why a respectable physician turned quack. The father of the hero was a somewhat remarkable man, in that he mainly lived on patent medicines. To quote from the book:

"Before dinner father took a dose of Dr. Mull's 'Helps to the Appetite.' After dinner a dose of 'Lightning Digester,' then back to the store as the clock struck one. At 3.15 he and Bige took a dose of 'Prof. Swoop's Instant Vitalizer.' Before supper a dose of 'Hart's Alimentary,' then back to the store promptly at 6 o'clock and home at 9, and to bed after taking a dose of 'Doneby's Sedative,' which produced 'restful and refreshing sleep.' "

The short stories that complete the book are of a humorous character.

AND THIS IS WAR. By Carl Hermon Dudley.

12*mo,* 152 pp., price postpaid $1.08.

The horrible cruelty of war is emphasized in this book, which contains a series of pictures of the tragedies that come to individual sufferers. The powerful presentation proclaims the author a master of tragedy, yet his eloquence is lost in the delineation of his theme. He seeks to prevent bloodshed by depicting the heartrending episodes that accompany human slaughter.

"These pictures are drawn with vivid, strong, and picturesque fidelity to fact, and the book is evidently worth the reading by those who think that the worst thing in the world is war."—Salt Lake Tribune.

LIGHTS AND SHADOWS. By H. Hayden Sands.

12*mo*, 175 pp., price postpaid $1.33.

Once in a while an author is found who writes real poetry—thoughts that mean something in themselves, and are expressed in such a metrical and tuneful fashion as to greatly heighten the inherent beauty of the thought. We have in the present book such a volume of verse.

Beauty, thine empire is supreme!
No other bloom or blossoms would I own
But what are sown.
The lasting seeds, there would I dream
Like one who in a raptured ecstasy
Cools his deep passion by Love's endless stream,
And on the sun-warmed grass, entranced, alone,
Strikes his gold lyre to the sounding sea.

RECIPROCITY. By William Wonder.

As Reported by Thomas Kirwan.

12*mo*, 217 pp., 2 illustrations; price postpaid $1.08.

12*mo*, 300 pp., price postpaid $1.60.

"With a contrast for the groundwork, the author of this novel has developed a strong and exceedingly interesting plot, making a novel of power and not a little originality."—Pittsburg Press.

THE MAN FROM MARS, or Service for Service's Sake.
By Henry Wallace Dowding.

12*mo, illustrated;* 400 pp., price postpaid $1.62.

The hero of this remarkable story is a General Moraine, who having spent many years in Paris and other parts of Europe, claims to have visited Mars, obtaining authentic information and data relating to the civilization on that planet. Chapter by chapter he narrates his journey to Mars, tells in detail of his experiences upon that wonderful planet—depicting a civilization younger than our own, but vastly superior; describing the social, political, religious and educational customs of the planet, and disclosing the secret of its greatness.

A most pleasing story of travel, love and romance is interwoven with the Martian descriptions. Not the least attractive feature is the comparison that the reader is bound to make between our uncivilized state on Earth and the almost perfect conditions of life on Mars, where they practice "Service for Service's Sake."

The book shows refined feeling,understanding and appreciation of all that is best and of most consequence in the Southwest, and the ability to infuse fiction with idealism."—N. Y. Saturday Review of Books.

DAILY NOTES OF TRIP AROUND THE WORLD.

By E. W. Howe,

Editor of the Atchison Globe.

In 2 Vols., boxed. Second edition. Price.....$2.25

E. W. Howe's Travel Notes are delightful.—W. D. Howells.

I have read them with tremendous interest. I do not know that I have ever read any book of travel so well done.—S. S. McClure, in McClure's Magazine.

A more interesting and vivid account of a flitting through outlandish lands is hard to find.—San Francisco Bulletin.

Doubtless there are other books giving more information about the people whom Mr. Howe has described in this unconventional narrative, but the homely homespun philosophy and the dry wit of the West (there is no humor produced in the East now) crop out on every page. The book is a Kansas classic.—Hamilton Holt, in N. Y. Independent.

He gets novel, strong and interesting impressions.—Harper's Weekly.

Howe is always worth reading. The reader will chuckle over every page, and lend the book to his best friends. The charm of the book is the charm of the author—he's so different.—Chicago Tribune.

E. W. Howe's book of travel notes is great.—Elbert Hubbard.

Here is a lesson in travel-writing that is worth while, and may not be done again in a hurry. Howe's book contains humor, pathos, freshness, and keen observation; here is travel-writing that is travel-writing. I cannot imagine a person who should not read this book.—Edward Bok, Editor Ladies' Home Journal.

I was amazed to see how much there was that others had either not seen, or else had not seen freshly enough to write about.—Lincoln Steffens.

The letters are the best, without exception, I have ever read. For the first time I have a real idea what the rest of the world is like; this writer tells you how things really are, not as some guide-book says they are.—Leigh Mitchell Hodge, in Philadelphia North-American.

Such a rare commingling of humor, laughter, pathos, human nature and national life, cannot be disregarded. The writer is able, without effort, to take the reader with him. He tells you the world's story as a man of few words, but numerous ideas and tremendous feeling and appreciation, only could tell it. If I had a friend who had lost the habit of smiling; who hates where he lives, I'd buy him these books of travel and be sure of a change for the better.—Frances Wayne, in Denver Post.

BLUE WATERS AND GREEN.

By F. Dumont Smith.

Price.....$1.50

Profusely illustrated with half-tones from photographs; also, some cartoons by Albert T. Reid.

We can give no better description of this book than to reproduce the words of a literary critic.

"Dodd Gaston" in the Topeka Daily Capital: "This morning, just as I dropped my book on the floor and turned over in bed to go to sleep, I heard my neighbor, Jessop, rattling around in his house next door. I realized, when I heard him poking at the kitchen range, that it was five o'clock, and that I had lain awake all night reading Fred Dumont Smith's book, 'Blue Waters and Green.' I had taken it to bed with me when I retired at midnight, expecting to dip into it for fifty pages or so and finish it at some other time. But it proved so interesting that I noted nothing of the ceaseless crawling of the hours, and read it through without stopping. . . . I had not expected to be so deeply interested in Smith's book, for the reason that within the month I had read E. W. Howe's travel notes. So far as Hong Kong, where Smith turned back, the two traversed practically the same route. I thought I might be a little sated with impressions of the Orient, and expected Smith's book to be handicapped by that fact. But I found that the two productions have little in common, and that one is as interesting and compelling as the other. And that is all one need say in praise of either. . . . . Howe went round the world. The impressions in his books are microscopic. They deal with the detail of human life as he saw it, and Howe is the closest and most accurate observer in this country. Smith visited Hawaii, the Philippines, China, and Japan. He stayed longer in a given place than Howe, and dug deeper. He did not neglect the human-interest phase of the matter, but he dipped into the governmental and social problems of the countries visited, and reached and expressed definite conclusions. Some of his opinions expressed no longer ago than last August have already been verified. His chapters on political and social matters in the Philippines and Japan are the first authoritative and unbiased word the people of this country have ever had, and they are correspondingly valuable."

CIVIL WAR ON THE BORDER.

By Wiley Britton, late of the War Department Washington.

In Two Volumes. Vol. 1, 493 pages. Vol. 2, 572 pages Cloth, Gilt Tops. Price, $2.00 per volume.

This is a handsome two-volume publication, with steel portraits and maps of battlefields. It is the only publication attempting to cover the operations of the Civil War in the most romantic region of our country, being the western parts of Missouri and Arkansas and the eastern parts of Kansas and the Indian Territory—a section which is now the central part of the United States.

"The books have high merits as history, and are very interesting to the general reader."—National Tribune, Washington.

"Mr. Britton's narrative is easy, circumstantial and impartial, and will take a place of honor in the library of the Civil War."—Literary World, Boston.

"While other historians have dealt incidentally with these campaigns, Mr. Britton has the field to himself in the systematic and comprehensive treatment of the border warfare, which, though out of the main channels of the Civil War, had an important bearing on the struggle and contributed no little to the final result."—The Interior, Chicago.

"The author, an attache of the War Department, has had special opportunities for investigation, and his narrative may be accepted as the most accurate and trustworthy account of these operations that has hitherto been written."—The Examiner, New York.

"Mr. Britton has chosen a field which has not been covered before, and which has been in some sense the despair of military writers. It is not too much to say that he has brought the history into intelligible order, and that his book must be the standard one on the subject."—Journal, Kansas City, Mo.

LEGISLATIVE PRACTICE.

By A. P. Riddle.

Ex-Lieutenant-Governor of Kansas.

Revised by Ex-Lieut.-Gov. James A. Troutman.

Pamphlet, 25 cents.

Being a concise statement of all the routine for the transaction of business of the State Senate and House of Representatives.

The deliberations of legislative bodies are governed by parliamentary laws, but these are modified by practice and restricted or enlarged by rules determined by the bodies themselves. Governor Riddle presided over the Kansas Senate for four years, and his knowledge of legislative practice, precedence and procedure is quite as extensive as that of any other man in the State. There are many rules in this work not found in any of the "Manuals" extant. Deliberative bodies, college societies, debating clubs, and official councils often require additional rules for the transaction of business. This little work will be found of use to them.

IN OLD QUIVIRA.

By MARGARET HILL MCCARTER.

In paper holiday binding.. 50 cents.

Quits in the form of an idyl is this legendary story of New Spain. The author represents a dreamer, lingering in the fading light of evening in the rotunda of the Kansas Capitol. The historic relics suggest many a story, and finally a Spanish sword inspires the tale which is set forth in the present unique little volume. The leading character is an elderly priest who has come from Spain to work among the Indians and first settlers of the West in America. His tragic death at the hands of those he had served is the final episode in this book. There is also a minor love romance, in which a youthful Spaniard figures. The atmosphere of romance is skillfully created, and in the matter of descriptions and incidents the volume is comparable to some of the Prescott histories.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

CUDDY'S BABY.

By MARGARET HILL MCCARTER.

Price, 50 cents.

A pretty little Christmas book, being an intensely interesting story of a Kansas University student.

[From the Kansas Farmer.]

"CUDDY'S BABY."—Among all the bright new books of the holiday time there is none more appropriate, more entertaining, more elevating, more filled with the spirit of the brave West as tempered by the spirit of the Prince of Peace, than this newest production of that gifted Kansas woman, Margaret Hill McCarter. Reared on the farm, Mrs. McCarter is well grounded in the kindly, neighborly spirit of country life. She portrays its trials and its triumphs with an imagery that is touching in its trueness. As a mother she knows all the earnest yearnings of the mother-heart, all the response of babyhood, childhood and youth to the mother's devotion. As a woman who has seen much of the world, she has comprehensive views of life and of the people of the world. As a Christian, she sees the elements that ennoble men, women, and children. As a writer of many books, she places upon paper the conceptions of her mind in sentences that entrance the reader.

Paper, 25 cents; Full Cloth, 50 cents.

This work is intended to be elementary, as its name, "First Steps," indicates. There is, so far as known to us, no other book on the market that begins at the beginning—the period when the student stands up for the first time to think on his feet. It carries the student by easy and natural steps, from this beginning point up to higher work.

The work being designed as a text-book, the classifications and subdivisions are numerous, in order that students may grasp the thought at first reading, thus avoiding the re-reading and pondering so often required by some texts. Simplicity and clearness have been a paramount aim.

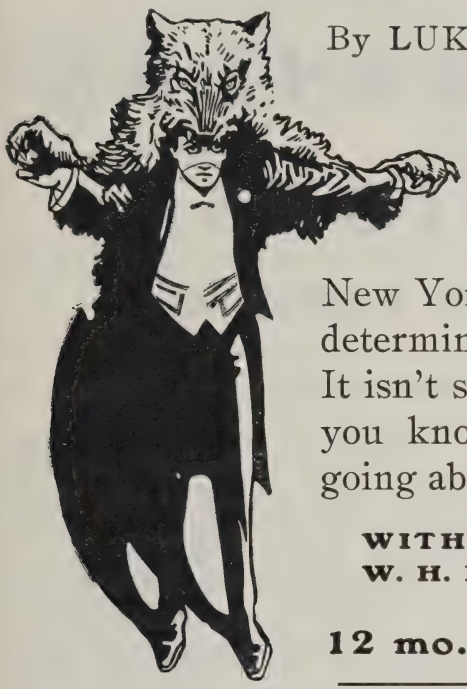
A SNAPPY UP-TO-DATE STORY

THE SOCIETY WOLF



By LUKE THRICE

Robert Carter, a cultured Virginian, penniless and friendless, with only a hall bedroom in a side street of New York to rest his head in, suddenly determines that he will enter Society. It isn't such a difficult thing to do, if you know how. Carter's manner of going about it makes absorbing reading.

BREEZY AND INTERESTING

PLAYING THE GAME

THE STORY OF A SOCIETY GIRL

By RITA WIEMAN

Illustrated by W. H. Loomis and Modest Stein

A BARON, a lady of mystery, a boy-lover, and a man; a king of finance; a queen of diplomacy, a snake-woman, a cat-man; Dick, Nella, and Gipsy—all tumbled onto the chess-board of Life to meet one another in the Game with which Society amuses itself. Gypsy begins by playing fair, only to discover that Society plus a mother are opponents. Trickery takes the place of honor. The field of sport becomes a scene of battle. Events stumble over one another. Victory beckons, then mocks, while the world applauds. One participant finds the game too swift and slips quietly into peace and obscurity. Gypsy is about to follow suit, when—but read for yourself and you'll say that the game has been well worth the candle.

A Book for Every Woman

HEALTH AND BEAUTY HINTS

BY MARGARET MIXTER

EVERY woman should have the privilege of beautifying her face, improving her figure, strengthening her hair, brightening her eyes, and making herself more attractive no matter what charms, or lack of them, Nature has given. And realizing how many plain women could be made almost beautiful if they knew how, this book is published in an honest endeavor to give information to women, young and old, beautiful and plain, about how to improve their personal appearance if it is not satisfactory, and how to keep the body free from ravages of time, worry and illness if there is natural beauty.

In addition to beauty advice, there are formulæ for soaps, powders, creams, all kinds of toilet lotions, etc., that can be compounded at home from pure ingredients at a comparatively small cost. There are hints about reducing flesh and producing desired weight, also some suggestions for indigestion and other ailments that can often be cured at home if taken before they become chronic.

THE MUSKET BOYS OF OLD BOSTON

Or, THE FIRST BLOW FOR LIBERTY

THIS initial volume takes in the struggle from Lexington and Concord to Bunker Hill and the evacuation of Boston by General Gage. The musket boys are three chums who go into the army, two serving as soldiers and one as a spy, and they have many adventures both with the British and with the unfriendly Tories. A dashing war tale, based on the best historical authorities.

THE MUSKET BOYS UNDER WASHINGTON

Or, THE TORIES OF OLD NEW YORK

FROM Boston the scene is shifted to Long Island, with its fierce fighting, and then to New York City and to Harlem Heights. The musket boys aid a girl to escape from a distant relative, a miserly Tory, who wanted to take her to England, and restore the maiden to another relative, an officer in the American army. The true situation in New York City during the Revolution is well described.

THE MUSKET BOYS ON THE DELAWARE

Or, A STIRRING VICTORY AT TRENTON

THIS volume relates the particulars of some fighting along the Hudson River, and of the retreat of Washington's army across New Jersey. It also relates the famous crossing of the Delaware on Christmas night and the consequent rout of the Hessians. As before, the Musket Boys are to the front, doing their duty well. A strange disappearance and a timely rescue add to the interest of the book.

A New Line of Athletic Stories

The College Sports Series

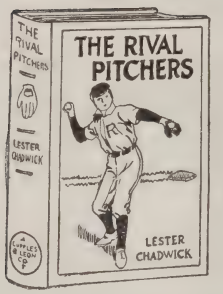
By LESTER CHADWICK

WE are certain that all boys and young men will hail this series with delight. No writer is better equipped to tell such stories than is Mr. Chadwick, for he has played on the diamond and on the gridiron himself, and has proved himself a coach of no mean ability. A true-to-life picture of college sports as played to-day.

12 mo. Cloth, Handsomely Illustrated.
Price per Volume, $1.00

THE RIVAL PITCHERS

A STORY OF COLLEGE BASEBALL



WHEN Tom Parsons came to Randall College he was looked upon by some as a mere country boy, a "hayseed." But Tom had played baseball at home and was a good pitcher, and soon he proved his ability and was put on the scrub team. Another pitcher was jealous of him and did his best to keep Tom off the leading nine. But Tom proved his worth, and helped the college to win the pennant. The volume gives a faithful picture of college life, with its hazings, its class dinners, its rushes for colors, its "grinds," its pretty girls, and all. The "grads" will want to read this as well as the young fellows.

A QUARTERBACK'S PLUCK

A STORY OF COLLEGE FOOTBALL

IS there anything more intensely thrilling than a close college football game, in which twenty-two husky fellows are doing their best to win immortal fame on the gridiron? Of all college and university sports football is undoubtedly king, and in this story Mr. Chadwick has risen to the occasion and told a story straight out of his own heart and one that is bound to grip the reader from the first chapter to the last. If you love athletic sports read this book and you will surely recommend it to your friends. It is the one real thing in football stories.

A FINE, breezy story of the woods and waters, of adventures in search of game, and of great times around the camp-fire, told in Captain Bonehill's best style. In the book are given full directions for camping out, what to take along, how to hunt both big and little game and the like.

They fall in with an old hermit, and are occasionally molested by some rivals. They also follow up two bears and fall into a den from which at first there appears to be no outlet. THE DAREWELL CHUMS SERIES

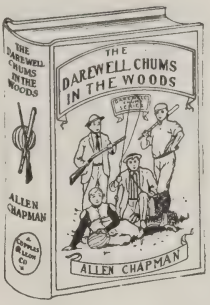
By ALLEN CHAPMAN



ALLEN CHAPMAN is already well-known to thousands of boy readers through his "Boys of Business Series" and numerous other popular works. The lad who reads one volume of this series will surely want them all.

Cloth. Illustrated
Price, per volume, 60 cents

THE DAREWELL CHUMS

Or, THE HEROES OF THE SCHOOL

A BRIGHT, lively story for boys, telling of the doings of four chums, at school and elsewhere. There is a strong holding plot, and several characters who are highly amusing. The volume points a strong moral, and for that reason is especially to be commended. Any youth getting this book will consider it a prize and tell all his friends about it.

THE DAREWELL CHUMS IN THE CITY

Or, THE DISAPPEARANCE OF NED WILDING

FROM a country town the scene is changed to a great city. One of the chums has disappeared in an extraordinary manner, and the others institute a hunt for him. This hunt leads to some unexpected discoveries, and the chums have hard work to keep out of trouble. The youths befriend a city waif, who in turn makes a revelation which clears up the mystery. A faithful picture of life in a great city to-day.

THE DAREWELL CHUMS IN THE WOODS

Or, FRANK ROSCOE'S SECRET

THE boys had planned for a grand outing when something happened of which none of them had dreamed. They thought one of their number had done a great wrong—at least, it looked so. But they could not really believe the accusations made so they set to work to help Frank all they could. All went camping some miles from home, and when not hunting and fishing spent their time in learning the truth of what had occurred.

THE DAREWELL CHUMS ON A CRUISE

Or, FENN MASTERSON'S ODD DISCOVERY

A SPIRITED tale of the Great Lakes. How the boys got a chance to go, what they did on the steamer and on shore, and how they solved the mystery of a valuable ore mine, is told in a fascinating style. There is a thrilling picture of an accident in a canal lock, and another of a great grain elevator fire. Captain Wiggs is a character calculated to make anybody roar with laughter.

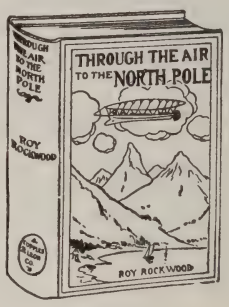
The Great Marvel Series

By ROY ROCKWOOD

THROUGH THE AIR TO THE NORTH POLE

Or, THE WONDERFUL CRUISE OF THE ELECTRIC MONARCH

Illustrated, 12 mo. Cloth, 60 cents



SINCE the days of Jules Verne all readers, both young and old, have enjoyed tales of flying machines and submarine boats. The airship is fast becoming an actual thing, and in this story there is a degree of reality that is almost convincing. The tale abounds in adventures in the frozen north, and tells of fights with strange animals and with strange people.

UNDER THE OCEAN TO THE SOUTH POLE

Or, THE STRANGE CRUISE OF THE SUBMARINE WONDER

Illustrated, 12 mo Cloth, 60 cents

THE Submarine is to-day an established fact, and in this tale has been utilized about all the data available concerning such a craft. The vessel moves from the coast of Maine to the boiling sea of the South Pole, and during the trip the voyagers visit the bottom of the ocean—the graveyard of many ships—and have numerous stirring encounters with deep sea monsters. Once they land on the coast of Terra Del Fuego and their vessel is captured by savages.

FIVE THOUSAND MILES UNDERGROUND

Or, THE MYSTERY OF THE CENTER OF THE EARTH

Illustrated, 12 mo. Cloth, 60 cents

ANOTHER of Mr. Rockwood's fascinating tales, telling of a trip far under the earth's surface, and of the many strange sights to be seen there. A craft is built which will both sail in the air and under the water, and in this the adventurers descend to the interior of our globe by means of an immense hole found at an island in the ocean. They meet the inhabitants of the inside world and have a series of adventures as wonderful as they are absorbing.

THROUGH SPACE TO MARS

Or, THE MOST WONDERFUL JOURNEY ON RECORD

Illustrated, 12 mo. Cloth, 60 cents

AT the present moment no planet is being more discussed than Mars. Is it inhabited, and, if so, are the people there like our own? Here is a "yarn" told so convincingly, and with such close attention to details, that it reads almost like fact. How the wonderful projectile was built, how the journey was made, and what happened when Mars was at last reached make reading that will prove of absorbing interest to young and old alike. Perhaps the best of all the books Roy Rockwood has yet penned.

BOYS OF BUSINESS SERIES

BY ALLEN CHAPMAN

ALLEN CHAPMAN is already favorably known to young people, and they are bound to hail this new series by him with immense satisfaction. The stories are bright and true to life, and make the best of reading for boys getting ready to enter business.

THE YOUNG EXPRESS AGENT

Or, BART STIRLING'S ROAD TO SUCCESS

Illustrated, 12mo. Cloth, 60 cents

BART'S father was the express agent in a country town. When an explosion of fireworks rendered him unfit for work, the boy took it upon himself to run the express office. Another person was jealous of the lad and tried to make trouble for him, and when some goods were missing from the office the young express agent was very much worried. The tale gives a good idea of the express business in general.

TWO BOY PUBLISHERS

Or, FROM TYPECASE TO EDITOR'S CHAIR

Illustrated, 12mo. Cloth, 60 cents

THIS tale will appeal strongly to all lads who wish to know how a newspaper is printed and published. The two boy publishers work their way up step by step, from a tiny printing office to the ownership of a town paper. There are some keen rivalries in the town, which makes the story a lively one from beginning to end.

MAIL ORDER FRANK

Or, A SMART BOY AND HIS CHANCES

Illustrated, 12mo. Cloth, 60 cents

HERE we have a story covering an absolutely new field—that of the mail-order business. How Frank started in a small way and gradually worked his way up to a business figure of considerable importance is told in a fascinating manner. A volume many grown folks will like to peruse fully as well as the young folks.

A BUSINESS BOY

Or, WINNING SUCCESS

Illustrated, 12mo. Cloth, 60 cents

ANOTHER clean-cut story of business life. It relates the doings of a youth who at first was somewhat wild, but later "settled down to business" and made a man of himself in the best sense of that term. All of the old characters of this series are introduced, and the plot revolves around the rivalry between two general stores in Pleasantville. A clear insight into business as conducted to-day is given, written in the charming manner which has made Mr. Chapman such a favorite with boys.

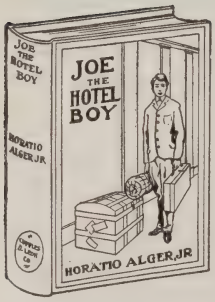
NEW ALGER BOOKS

JOE THE HOTEL BOY

Or, WINNING OUT BY PLUCK

By HORATIO ALGER, Jr.

Illustrated, 12mo. Cloth, 60 cents



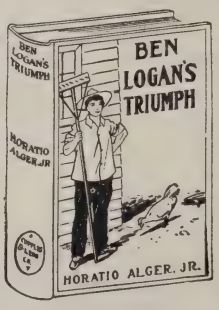
THIS is one of the last stories penned by that prince of all juvenile writers, Horatio Alger, Jr., and is one of his best. It describes the adventures of a youth brought up in the country by an old hermit. When the hermit dies the boy obtains work at a nearby hotel and later on drifts to the city and obtains a position in another hotel. There is a mystery concerning the lad's identity and likewise the disappearance of a certain blue box, but in the end all terminates satisfactorily.

BEN LOGAN'S TRIUMPH

Or, THE BOYS OF BOXWOOD ACADEMY

By HORATIO ALGER, Jr.

Illustrated, 12mo. Cloth, 60 cents



THIS story was penned by Mr. Alger some years before his death but has never appeared in book form. Ben was a city newsboy, rather rough but with a heart of gold. He did a great service for a good-hearted farmer and the latter took Ben home with him. The lad had never been in the country before, and his eyes were opened to a new world. Then the youth was sent to a boarding school where he made his way to the front amid many difficulties. Mr. Alger's charm as a juvenile writer is so well known it is needless to mention it here, and this story is in his best vein.

DOROTHY DALE'S QUEER HOLIDAYS

THIS story relates the details of the mystery surrounding Tanglewood Park—a mystery that many folks had tried to solve for many months. Every girl will want to know what the mystery was and what Dorothy and the others did to solve it. There is a great snowstorm, and the young folks become snowbound, much to their dismay. A book to charm the heart of any girl.

THE MOTOR GIRLS SERIES

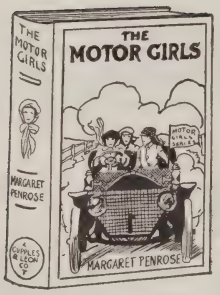
By MARGARET PENROSE

EVER since the enormous success of our "Motor Boys Series" by Clarence Young we have been asked why we did not get out a similar series for girls. To satisfy this demand we have induced Mrs. Margaret Penrose, whose "Dorothy Dale Series" has been so well received, to undertake the series for us. No one is better equipped to furnish these tales than Mrs. Penrose, who, besides being an able writer, is an expert automobilist.

12 mo. Cloth. Illustrated. Price, per volume, 60 cents

THE MOTOR GIRLS

Or, A MYSTERY OF THE ROAD



WHEN Cora Kimball got her touring car she did not imagine that so many adventures were in store for her. But a rival was jealous of Cora and she did several things to bring on serious trouble. During a trip from one city to another a rich young man lost a pocketbook containing some valuable stocks and a large sum in cash. Later, to the surprise of everybody, the empty pocketbook was found in the tool box of Cora's automobile. In the volume are related the particulars of a masquerade party that ended in a most unexpected manner, and how Cora raced against a train is told with a dash and vigor all wideawake girls will appreciate. A splendid initial volume to a great series.

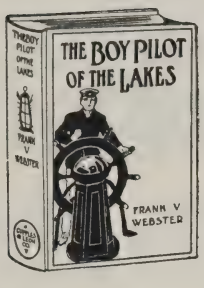
THE MOTOR GIRLS ON A TOUR

Or, KEEPING A STRANGE PROMISE

A GREAT many things happen in this volume, starting with the running over of a hamper of good things on the road. There is a picnic in the woods, a strange hold-up of a mail carrier, and the still stranger tale of the missing family table—a precious heirloom. How the table was traced up by Cora and her chums and what followed make just the right kind of reading for girls. Mrs. Penrose's books are all clean and safe, and ought to be on the bookshelf of every girl in the land.

THE WEBSTER SERIES FOR BOYS

By FRANK V. WEBSTER



WE think we have made a distinct find in Mr. Frank V. Webster, who is under contract to write exclusively for us. Mr. Webster's style is much like that of the late-lamented Horatio Alger, Jr., but his tales are all up to date.

BOB THE CASTAWAY

Or, THE WRECK OF THE EAGLE

A book that marks an epoch in Comparative Philology

The Primitive Aryans of America

By THOMAS S. DENISON, A. M.

Author of "Mexican in Aryan Phonology;" "A Mexican-Aryan Comparative Vocabulary;" "Morphology of the Mexican Verb."

THIS book records the only discovery in comparative philology ever made in America. The mystery of four centuries, the origin of the American Indian, is solved in so far as the Aztecs and kindred tribes are concerned. A fascinating book for every philologist, ethnologist and scholar.

More books have been written about the Aztecs than almost any other tribe or people, but their origin up to the present has been wrapped in profound mystery. Mr. Denison has shown them to be Indo-Iranians.

"At the startling assertion of cognation between Mexican and Primitive Aryan, and more particularly the Indo-Iranian group, it is hard not to feel the hostility of surprise. But the author has made a conscientious study of his problem, and barring details of technique, his method is fundamentally sound as far as it goes."—Prof. Edwin W. Fay, in American Journal of Philology.

"A very interesting, learned and unique work."—Pittsburg Post.

"The author's proposition, to which he has evidently given much careful study, is that the Mexican language is Aryan."—Baltimore Sun.

"Makes out a strong case of the relationship between the Aztecs and the Aryans."—Bulletin American Republics.

"It interests me greatly. It is the only scientific attempt ever made to show genetic relationship between the languages of the Old and the New World."—Prof. University of Oxford.

"You have made a genuine contribution to American scholarship and you may well be proud of it."—Pres. An American College.

ILLUSTRATED PANTOMIMES

MY COUNTRY, 'TIS OF THEE. 50 cents. A pantomime for 1 female, by ANNA D. COOPER, illustrating by a succession of emotional and patriotic poses, the progress of the American Anthem, while it is read, or sung with musical accompaniment. It consists of over 25 graceful and effective changes of gesture, 10 of which are photographed from life, the poser being draped in the American flag. It occupies about 8 minutes and is specially adapted for schools, churches and patriotic societies.

HARK, HARK, MY SOUL. 50 cents. A beautiful rendering of the hymn in pantomime for 1 female, by ANNA D. COOPER. The sentiments of the hymn are illustrated by a lady in a continuous change of gestures, 10 of which are portrayed by photographs taken from life, while the verses are sung by a solo singer and chorus concealed from the audience. It requires about 6 or 7 minutes for performance and is strikingly effective.

GYPSY'S WARNING, The. 50 cents. A pantomime for 1 male and 2 female performers, arranged and posed by ANNA D. COOPER. The actions of the posers are illustrative of the text of the song as sung with piano accompaniment behind the scene. An old Gypsy discovers a Cavalier ardently wooing a maiden. The Gypsy recognizes him as the one who has wooed and deserted her own daughter, and warns the maiden of his perfidy. The climax, when the maiden at last convinced recoils in horror from the Cavalier, is powerfully dramatic. It is illustrated with 6 tableaux photographed from life, and occupies 8 to 10 minutes.

MISS HULDAH'S OFFER. 50 cents. A pantomime for 1 female, arranged by ANNA D. COOPER. Fully described and illustrated by 6 photographs from life. Miss Huldah, a sentimental maiden of 40, receives an offer of marriage in a letter which is read behind the scenes. (The text may also be recited as a monologue in action.) The manner in which the offer affects her is faithfully and humorously portrayed by her actions and demeanor. The struggle between jubilant satisfaction and maidenly modesty at the offer, almost past her hoping for, is very funny. The action covers about 8 minutes.

HAMLET. 15 cents. A tragedy in 5 acts. 15 male and 3 female characters.

AS YOU LIKE IT. 15 cents. A comedy in 5 acts. 17 male and 5 female characters.

ROMEO AND JULIET. 15 cents. A tragedy in 5 acts. 16 male and 4 female characters.

Size, 4½ x 7; pages, 94; binding, boards, .75

ALCHIN, C. A. — Ear Training for Teacher and Pupil.

Size, 5½ x 8¼; pages, 156; binding, cloth, $1.00

This work does not aim to take the place of a text-book on harmony, but is designed rather, through training the sense of hearing, to teach the pupil to think in tones, so that he may sing, name, write, and play what he hears; to harmonize melodies at sight, to improvise accompaniments, and to recognize and appreciate not only the melodic effects in music, but the harmonic and rhythmic as well. The book is the direct outcome of the author's practical experience in teaching.

ALDRICH, RICHARD. — A Guide to Parsifal.

Size, 4¾ x 7¼; pages, 96; 8 illustrations; binding, cloth, $1.00

This is by far the most readable and compact handbook upon Wagner's great trilogy which has yet appeared. To the happy faculty of treating his subject in concise and lucid fashion, Mr. Aldrich adds a charm of style which holds the reader's attention from cover to cover. His presentation of his material is logically planned and comprehensive, and the book is illustrated by reproductions in musical notation of all the leading motives or themes. The phraseology throughout is happily free from technical terms.

A total of 29 numbers has been made, many of which have never appeared in any previous collection, rendering this volume the most complete and comprehensive soprano album of Wagner's lyrics ever published. A fine portrait of the composer, and an interesting biographical and critical essay preface the work; while a complete chronological table, and a very full bibliography further enrich this remarkable volume.
